AN APPRECIATION

In the collecting and compiling of the data herein recorded, an undertaking started by the writer in 1898 and therefor covering a period of about thirty-five years, we could not have achieved the success shown without the generous assistance of hundreds of interested correspondents, members of all branches of the family.

We are particularly indebted to Mr. Benjamin Franklin Wilbour of Little Compton, Rhode Island, through whose interest, zeal and untiring effort, a wealth of material secured by his personal review of thousands of volumes of public and private records, has been added to this collection.

Mr. Wilbour's articles on the historical and biographical phases of the early generations of the family afford the most accurate and authentic record in existence. His generous and unselfish cooperation thus makes available much data, without which this work would be lacking in its present completeness and accuracy.

In like manner we are indebted to Miss Nellie Brownell Potter of Clayville, Rhode Island, whose research work on the Scituate, Rhode Island Wilbores, together with her personal cooperation has made possible the presentation of these families with exceptional completeness and accuracy.

To Otis Wilbor, for many years Town Clerk of Little Compton, R. I., for the valuable manuscript records he compiled; to the Hon. Josiah Drummond, whose research on and records of the Shadrach branch; to Dr. Asa Wilbur's Family, record published in 1871; to Madison B. Wilber and Oren B. Wilber for data collections on New York families, we acknowledge our indebtedness and the important part the work done by these "Wilbore Trail Blazers" has played in assisting in making this record possible in its present completeness.

To these with the hundreds of other members of the family who have aided us in many ways, we acknowledge our grateful indebtedness.

JOHN REID WILBOR.

FOREWORD

The preparation and publishing of this volume as supplementary to the book printed in 1907 under the same title, "The Wildbores in America," has been delayed because of the very great interest manifested by members of the family and the result thereof as shown by the immense volume of data sent to us for inclusion in this revised edition.

The work of compiling a family genealogy is an endless, never ending one.

Aside from the older generations, we have the newly weds and the newly born to consider and place. Hundreds of members of the family have contributed to the wealth of information contained in this volume and the ones yet to be printed on the generations following those herein.

The appreciation of the compilers while heartily and sincerely felt and expressed by them, must be small compensation, in comparison, to the feeling of pride and satisfaction that each and every contributor must feel in having a part in the making of this splendid record, embracing as it does all branches of one entire family, from the first emigrant, down to and including births within the year.

Needless to say, that this work could not have been done without the generous cooperation of these loyal "cousins."

During the thirty-five years the writer has been engaged in this work, many of the most splendid, enjoyable and enduring friendships have been formed and in these have come that compensation not to be reckoned in the coin of the realm. It is with sincere regret that not a few of these staunch friends have passed to their reward, but notwithstanding, there remains memories, of those who labored, loved and served and the inspiration of their generous example to spur us on.

Their work is here recorded for you, yours and for generations yet unborn, to enjoy, an unending service of loyalty to the family name they bore. Monuments of marble and bronze may crumble but Wilbores everywhere will now and forever recall their service with grateful remembrance.

SAMUEL WILDBORE

The biographical facts concerning this, the first emigrant of the name to this continent are comprehensively set forth in the article by Mr. Benjamin Franklin Wilbour on pages 7 to 34.

———o———

SPELLING OF THE NAME

The name WILDBORE appears in many records in England and is still used by some families in that country.

On this continent, SAMUEL, the first emigrant is referred to in various records, public and private, as WILDBORE and WILBORE. On the occasion of the signing of the pact or agreement on March 4, 1638, Samuel's signature appears as "Samuel Wilbore."

This spelling appears to have been used by Sāmuel's sons and to a greater or lesser extent by succeeding generations. Changes have come with the passing years and for reasons impossible to ascertain, until at the present time we have in use Wilbar, Wilber, Wilbor, Wilbore, Willbur, Wilbour and Wilbur. Of these, Wilbur is mostly largely used with Wilber next.

To some extent the spelling is indicative of the early residence of the family using it, but as different spellings are found among brothers and their families, the spelling is not conclusive. Generally speaking the William or Rhode Island branch use Wilbour and Wilbor, altho the other spellings also appear. The Shadrach or Massachusetts branch use Wilbur almost exclusively.

Regardless of the present day spelling all, so far as we have been able to find, are descendants of Samuel Wildbore and of his sons.

Wherever possible through this work, the spelling used by the family is given together with "Wilbor" which we use as a matter of simplification and convenience. It is impossible in many cases to determine with accuracy which spelling was actually used.

Public records are frequently at variance with other public and private records, making this question of spelling still more difficult of satisfactory solution.

COMPLETENESS OF THIS RECORD

Every effort has been made to make this record accurate and complete.

Some families are more incomplete than others, this because of a lack of information.

Repeated invitations have been extended to members of the family in all parts of the world, but a considerable part of this effort and expense has been without results. Hundreds of these requests appear to have fallen on barren ground for many have failed to avail themselves of the opportunity to print and preserve genealogical data pertaining to their branch of the family. With the descendants of these negligent and indifferent we can but share their disappointment and extend our sympathy. It may be suggested that while any feeling of disappointment is still keenly felt, that the individual so affected make an active effort to secure the needed information and send in for use in any future edition.

THE ENGLISH ANCESTRY OF SAMUEL WILBORE, OF BOSTON, AND WILLIAM WILBORE, OF PORTSMOUTH, R. I.

By Benjamin Franklin Wilbour, of Little Compton, R. I.
Communicated by Committee on English and Foreign Research

Samuel Wilbore, with his wife Ann and their three children, Samuel, Jr., Joseph, and Shadrach, arrived in Boston in 1633.

The first indication of their arrival in America is given in the records of the first church of Boston, where Samuel Wilbore and his wife Ann join the church on 1 Dec. 1633. We do not know on what ship they came to New England, but suppose that it was the ship Griffin, which arrived in Boston on 4 Sept. 1633, bringing about two hundred passengers, mostly from East Anglia, including John Cotton, later minister of the first church of Boston, but a very small percent of the names of the passengers are available to us today.

When William Wilbore, later of Portsmouth, R. I., arrived, is not clear. The first record that we have of him is found in a deed at Portsmouth, wherein his cousin Samuel Wilbore, Sr., of Boston, on 10 July 1654, transfers land to him. It is very probable that William arrived about this time, for in England he was buying land in 1649 and selling it in 1650, as is shown in some of the records that follow.

Savage's "Genealogical Dictionary" has the following to say about the Wilbores. "Samuel Wildbore with wife Ann, who was daughter of Thomas Bradford of Doncaster, in the southern part of Yorkshire, as in his will of March 1, 1607 is shown, was admitted to the first church, Dec. 1, 1633 and had no doubt brought with him children, Samuel, Joseph and Shadrack from England and had no children born on this side, unless we see cause to give him William".

Mr. Savage was wrong about this and jumped to conclusions rather hastily, as it has been proved otherwise.

In 1923 I went to the city of York, England, and examined the original will of Thomas Bradford of Doncaster and found the following statement as to his daughter Ann: "To my daughter Ann Wildbore, the wife of Zacharias Wildbore". This Ann Bradford did not marry our Samuel Wilbore, but did marry, according to the Boyd index, at Thorne, Yorkshire, in 1607, Zacharias Wildbore. If Mr. Savage had seen the original will, he would not have come to the conclusion he did. He saw only a copy of this will in a collection of wills got together by Joseph Hunter of Doncaster, who unfortunately left out the name of the husband of Ann Bradford. This collection was being got together for the purpose of searching for Governor Bradford's ancestry.

But why did Samuel Wilbore, and he never spells his name Wildbore, at this time leave England and from what part of England did he emigrate? There was no economic necessity for the move as the Wilbores being wool merchants of county Essex were in good financial condition. Therefore we conclude that he left for religious reasons.

In the year 1628 Laud became bishop of London and his great weight and influence were felt more especially in county Essex, an important part of his diocese. He suspended Rogers of Dedham and Rogers of Wethersfield in 1629. Gone from Essex in the year 1632 was that group of people who settled in Wollaston, Mass., then called Mt. Wollaston, which was near Boston. This little group of families were from the vicinity of Chelmsford, Colchester, and Braintree. It is very evident why Samuel left the county of Essex and came to America in this year of 1633, because Archbishop Laud came to the height of his power in that same year and his prosecutions were intensified in this county. Samuel Wilbore is also shown to have been a very religious man at other times, for in 1637 he, with others was banished to Portsmouth R.I.for being a follower of Ann Hutchinson. After the death of Ann, missing their leader, the Wilbores in Rhode Island became Quakers, the evident reason being that her antinomian religion resembled the beliefs of the Friends.

But from what part of England did Samuel Wilbore come? I had already seen the will of Elizabeth Wilbore of Sible Hedingham, county Essex, at Somerset House, wherein she mentioned her son Samuel Wilbore, as well as her other children, Robert, John, Edmund, and Elizabeth, but, with the exception of Samuel, these were not Wilbore names at all. Later, much to my surprise, I found that the rest of the children were by her former husband, Robert Harrington, vicar of Sible Hedingham, who, dying in 1594, left these four Harrington children, who were half-brothers and sisters to Samuel. Samuel Wilbore and his half-brother, Edmund Harrington, were made executors of her will. As I had a collection of fourteen Samuel Wilbores in England, I could not at first prove that the above Samuel was the one who came to America.

After seeing the will of Elizabeth Wilbore, I wrote to the vicar of Sible Hedingham, who, after duly investigating the parish records of that place, declared that he could find no such name as Wilbore. He also declared that he could not read the records very readily, but that a scholar from Cambridge would make the search for one pound a page, which of course was an unheard of price and a ridiculous statement, and that people as early as 1600 had no last names. After reading these ridiculous statements, and thinking that these records must be again searched by a competent person I wrote to Mr. N. I. Butts of Provo, Utah, who examined the Boyd index in Salt Lake City and found the marriage of Samuel Wilbore and Ann Smith (not Ann Bradford) in Sible Hedingham in 1620.

In the year 1944, I employed Mr. L. H. H. Whitehead, of Long Melford, co. Suffolk, to go to Sible Hedingham and examine the parish records. He found not only the marriage of Samuel Wilbore and Ann Smith, but also the baptisms of the five children of Samuel and Ann, namely, Samuel, Junior, Jespheff or Joseph, Sidreake, Arthur, and William, these two last died at Sible Hedingham and the remainder corresponded to the children who came over with Samuel and Ann. For further proof that we have the right man, we have Samuel's signature on both sides of the water. His signature is on the Portsmouth compact of 1638 at the Rhode Island state house and is also attached to a letter in possession of the Massachusetts Historical Society, signed by him. In England I had photostated his signatures where he signs as witness to his brother Robert Wilbore's will, as witness to the will of Samuel Allen, and where he signs as one of the jurors at Sible Hedingham in 1624.

This branch of the Wilbores in England lived mainly in Sible Hedingham, Braintree, Colchester, and Halstead in the county of Essex. Unfortunately the parish records in the Wilbore towns are scarce before 1633 in the churches attended by the family. In most cases the parish records do not go back far enough. The principal Wilbore parish in Colchester is St. Runwald, but according to the copied records there no Wilbores are mentioned. In Braintree the parish records unfortunately do not begin until 1660. The reason for this is explained in "Descendants of Joseph Loomis", 1908, part one, by Elisha S. Loomis, Ph.D., which says, "The records of this church before 1660 were mostly used by the sexton, for lighting the furnace fires. This destruction was confessed by the culprit to the present vicar". It would seem that this lamentable affair occurred as recently as the early 1900's, and it is especially unfortunate for American families, as quite a few families left Braintree for America, and from nearby Bocking. Colonel Banks seems to be convinced of the importance of these two towns as he has references to over fifty wills of people of Braintree and Bocking at the Congressional library in Washington, D. C.

The Wilbores of Colchester, co. Essex, seem to have appeared there about fifteen hundred, and according to the Colchester oath book they were born in the West Riding of Yorkshire. Nicholas Wilbore, the grandfather of Samuel, went from Colchester to Braintree, and Nicholas, the father of Samuel, about the year 1595 left Braintree for Sible Hedingham, because he had married Elizabeth Harrington, the widow of Robert Harrington, late vicar of Sible Hedingham, who had died there 10 Aug. 1594. As this was so, Samuel could not have been born in 1585, which was the approximate date long accepted as the year of his birth. As Robert Harrington died in 1594 and as the chancery record indicates that Nicholas and Elizabeth were married before 1597, Samuel was born between 1595 and 1600 as his marriage occurred in 1620. He was of Sible Hedingham in 1633 when he sailed for America as his son Shadrach was baptized there in 1632.

As for William Wilbore, of Portsmouth, R. I., who is ancestor mainly of the Rhode Island Wilbores, it is proved that he was a cousin of Samuel by the following statements made by his cousin, Samuel Wilbore, Jr., and by the financial transactions made between him and his cousin, Shadrach Wilbore.

The will of Samuel, Jr., son of the first Samuel, was made in Portsmouth 21 Aug. 1678, and was proved there 7 Nov. 1710. Strange to say, both William and Samuel, Jr., died the same year. In this will Samuel says, "I doe give and bequeath unto my cousin William Wil-bore Sr 250 acres of land in the Narragansett countrey". He also says, "I doe will that my son-in-law Lt. Latham Clarke and my cousin William Wilbore Sr shall take care of my deeds in the Narragansett countrey", etc.

When Shadrach, the son of Samuel Wilbore, Sr., was cast into prison by Sir Edmund Andros for remonstrating against the unjust taxes levied by Andros, and while in prison, as the records of Taunton show, the town borrowed from William Wilbore of Portsmouth forty-five shillings for the use of Shadrach Wilbore, and he was ordered to repay the lender on 21 Nov. 1689.

All this shows that William Wilbore of Portsmouth was related to the Wilbores of Boston and closely associated with them.

The word "cousin" in early times could mean several things or several different relationships, but in this case it means cousin as we use the word at the present time. It has long been thought that William Wilbore was probably a nephew of Samuel, Sr., but this cannot be true, for on examination of the Wilbore wills in England we find that Samuel, Sr., had no brothers of the Wilbore name who could have had a son William. To be sure, Samuel had two half brothers, Robert Wilbore, whose will in 1619 names only his son Edmund Wilbore, the rest of his children having died. Samuel also had a half brother, Nicholas 3d, who names no children in his will, but does name his nephew, Edmund Wilbore, son of his brother Robert, so that William of Portsmouth could not be a nephew of Samuel, Sr.

On examination of the Wilbore pedigree we find that William names his first child Mary for his grandmother, his second child Joseph for his grandfather, his third child John for his father, the fourth child Thomas for his uncle, the fifth William for himself, the sixth Martha for his wife, the seventh Samuel for his cousin Samuel, the ninth Joanna for his mother, but as for Daniel and Benjamin, I cannot say where their names come from. Perhaps from Martha's side of the house. It can be seen that William for a while lacking daughters could not name a child for his mother, but just as soon as a daughter was born he named her Joanna.

William Wilbore was the son of John Wilbore of Braintree, grandson of Joseph and Mary Wilbore of Braintree, and great-grandson of Nicholas and Ann Wilbore of Colchester, later of Braintree.

In the year 1630 Charles the first granted to the Earl of Warwick the Isle of Providence, where a settlement was to be made by the English. This Providence Island, or old Providence, is one hundred miles east of the Mosquito coast and consists of the islands of Henrietta and Cataline. They now belong to the United States of Colombia of South America and have been continually confused with the newer Providence of the Bahamas. Old Providence was colonized by the Earl of Warwick in 1630, but the English were expelled in 1641 by the Spaniards. See article "From Bahama Islands", by John T. Hassam, 1899. Such was the confusion that the two record books of old Providence, 1630-1641, were placed with the books of New Providence of the Bahamas in the record office in London.

When searching at the Essex county record office in Chelmsford I found the following Ms which has to do with the settling of old Providence.

D/D BA. "At Braintree. We whose names are hear underwritten do promise unto Thomas Barrington to goe with ye next shippe bound for ye Islae of Providence under his name. Signed, Thomas Maynard. Henry Neale. Martin Cofield. Signed Jany 25, 1631. Signed alsoe the same day by me, John Wilbore".

The above John Wilbore of Braintree, who took part in this settlement, may be the one who was the father of our William. However, William Wilbore, son of John, buys land in Braintree in 1649 and in 1650 he sells this same land. As early as 1654 we find William in Portsmouth, R. I. (see manor rolls of Braintree further on).

But to return to Samuel, Sr. Who was his mother? Elizabeth Harrington? According to the court of Chancery in the year 1597 Nicholas Wilbore and his wife Elizabeth, the late wife of Robert Harrington, Clark deceased, "that whereas her sayde late husband deceased was in his lyfe lawfully seized of land from one John Coe of much Maplestead in the county of Essex with one messuage and a croft of land conteyning three acres, some marshe ground planted in hoppes, containing two acres late in hands of William Harrington and one William Raynor, all which lyeth in Much Maplestead and three acres of Croft of land or pasture and other land or pasture which conteyneth nine acres, the 2d, six acres and the 3d, five acres and that the said Robert Harrington did by his last will and testament will and devise the same to said Elizabeth being then his wife, for the terme of her natural life and that one William Syddaye having gotten into his hands the last will and testament of Robert Harrington Dec. destroyed same".

The above is the only evidence as to the identity of the second wife of Nicholas Wilbore, but we still do not have her maiden name. The first wife of Nicholas Wilbore, the father of Samuel, was Mary Plume, daughter of Robert Plume and Elizabeth Purchas, who held several manors and halls in Essex and Suffolk counties.

Although the Wilbore parish records are very scarce, we have had very good luck with the Wilbore wills of Essex, of which all have been photostated and will be placed in the vault at the New England Historic Genealogical Society. These photostats are very satisfactory, and have been gone over quite a few times to be sure that they were correctly copied. The writing of this period, of course, is difficult for the average person.

We first find the Wilbores in county Essex in the town of Colchester, said to be the oldest town in England. Here the Romans settled in the year forty A. D. Some of the Roman Walls are still in existence and the churches are built out of Roman bricks.

According to the Colchester oath book, the four Wilbore men who came from Yorkshire in the West Riding were born in the following towns: John Wylbore, woolen draper, a burgess, in 1528-9, was born in Rushton; Thomas Wylbore, tailor, a burgess in 1549-50, was born in Ruston; Richard Wylbore was born in Notton (Norton) and was a shereman in Colchester in 1557-8; and Nicholas Wylbore, woolen draper, in 1522 in Colchester, was born in Medylton, Yorkshire. He was a burgess in Colchester. These four Wilbores came to Colchester about 1500 and the outlook was very discouraging, for there were nine Nortons in Yorkshire, two Rustons at least, and many Middletons. Which of these were the Wilbore towns was the question. On looking at the oath book again I found that Richard Wilbore says that he was born at Notton, and evidently the clerk thought that he meant Norton, which he put down in parenthesis. This threw new light on the matter, and on looking at a map of Yorkshire I find a Notton in the West Riding and right next to it in the same parish is Royston, and using the same railroad station and practically the same town. So we find that John and Thomas Wilbore came from Royston, not Ruston, as understood by the clerk; Richard Wilbore came from Notton, not Norton; and Nicholas Wilbore came from Middleton or Middletown, two towns near Royston. All these three towns are close together and in the West Riding, where there are, or were, numerous Wilbores and Wildbores very early, as follows: in Yorkshire 1264. In 1264 Sir Robert Wildebore was living at Somerhouse.

In 1315 was residing in Essoins, William Wildebore and Robert his son.
1352. One Hugh Wildbore of Ossett, owned two oxgangs and a messuage.
1355. In 1355 John Wildebore of Ossett son of Hugh did fealty there.

The town or village of Ossett is south of Dewsbury and very near to Royston and there is a good chance that Hugh Wildbore is the ancestor of the Royston Wilbores.

1379. In the poll tax of 1379 of the West Riding John Wildbore above and wife of Ossett and their son John Junior each paid four pence.
1379. Johannes Wildebore and Matilda of Herthill four pence was paid in 1379.
1379. In Suthill now Soothill is Willemus Wyldbore et Ux four pence. Soothill is on the north side of Dewsbury and evidently a very small place. The printed poll tax of 1379 shows these places on pages 15, 171, and 193.
1379. In 1379 William Wildbore resided in Southill.
1502. At Sandall in 1502 lived James Wilbore at the death of his father Richard.
1538. William Wilbore was mayor of Pontefracte (see Harl. Mss #96, p. 453).

The Wilbores in Pontefracte in 1534 bore arms, Sable on a fesse between two boars passant argent, a javelin point of the First. It was from these Wildbores at Pontefracte that the Wilbores and Wildbores of Doncaster, Bentley in the parish of Arksey, Clavering Essex, Cambridge in Cambridgeshire, Knottingly, etc., were descended. See "Wildbores in America", by John R. Wilbor and Benjamin F. Wilbour, vol. 3.

In Kirby-Cum-Osgodsby, county Lincoln, in the small church there are the tombs of John Wildbore and Margaret his wife. The Gervaise Holles church notes taken about 1640 have the following to say:

"In the quire, a fair tombe raysed above ye ground where lyes John Wildbore and his wife at his feete. The tombe is of great length. He lyes in complete armes gilt. Upon his circoat three boars passant ermine. In divers places of the moneument three boares and an escarbuncle. Under his head lyes his helmett. His crest a boare seint ermine. The inscription thus:

"Hic jacet Johannes Wildbor, qui obiit tertio nonas Octobris, An'O nin millessimo tercentessimo Octaua ceyus armine." Above his wife's head, two escocheons. Three boares passant ermyne. Wildboare. A chevron between three bulls passant. Tourney. The inscription thus: Hic Jacet D'ne Margaretta, quondam vxor John's Wildbor, cujus Armine", etc.

As I saw them in 1929 these tombs were side by side.

There were also Wilbores in the counties of Cheshire, Kent, Suffolk, Nottingham, and Lancashire. Though there were many Wilbores in the west Riding of Yorkshire, there were practically none in the east and north Ridings, which are mainly agricultural, with fields reaching to the north sea, and consisting of extremely attractive country. The west riding is mainly given over to the production of coal, and to the woolen trade. This is the reason we find the Wilbores in the west riding, for they occupied themselves in very early times in the raising and manufacture of wool in Yorkshire until about 1500, when our branch of the Wilbores left for Colchester in Essex. For the next hundred and fifty years, or until 1633 or until Samuel Wilbore left England for America, they were still in the wool business, as was Samuel in Boston, and William of Portsmouth.

But why did these Wilbores leave Yorkshire at this time? I find that the "Victoria History of Yorkshire" has this to say: "For the Yorkshire clothiers and drapers, industrial labor was their general lot and the wool business was accompanied by general poverty. But the typical Clothier of the counties further south working on a large scale, had become wealthy and increased in riches, his house like a king's court, his table replenished with feasts, hospitality and with such plenty on every side, that in some cases, crowned heads were highly pleased with the entertainment they received at their hands".

We will see by the wills of Nicholas Wilbore in 1582, grandfather of Samuel and William Nicholas's son of Halstead that they held much land and many houses, including his meadow at Skitts Hill in Braintree, a large piece of land from which many Roman remains have since been unearthed. This place is still known as Skitts Hill and is covered at the present time with many new houses. This is where Nicholas pastured his sheep, for many of the clothiers raised their own wool, the clothier being a person who had cloth made and sold it. He was the wool buyer, weaver, and cloth seller. Sometimes the employer would work under his own roof, the remainder in their own homes.

The Shermans who came to Boston were in the same business, as were their associates, the Wilbores. Samuel Wilbore bought a house with Richard Sherman on Milk Street in Boston. This evidently was a place to sell cloth. The Shermans of Dedham had a very large building in Dedham, England, where they lived and where the employees worked on wool, a very interesting place where people still live.

The Braintree Manor Rolls

I am greatly indebted to Mr. Aubrey E. Douglas-Smith for the following manor rolls and their translation. He is of Great Bardfield, co. Essex, England, and his mother was an American. Many of her ancestors have been traced here. Mr. Douglas-Smith is a descendant of William Wilbore of Portsmouth.

The two first deeds have to do with William Wilbore of Portsmouth, before he left for America.

D. 1551 and annually on All Saints day until the aforesaid 90 pounds shall have been paid in full. Delivered in the presence of Benjamin Clere, Richard Wilbore, William Stalsnorth Sr, John Wilbore and Robert Lamb. Dated in September 1550.

[The court rolls of Colchester have no Wilbores named in the records from 1512 to 1518.]

Le stone house given in the above deeds was a very old house indeed when it came into the possession of Nicholas and Ann Wilbore and John Wilbore, taylor and Alice Smith, his wife. According to the historian Morant, "Le stone house was nearly opposite the Moot hall, and on the spot occuppied by the houses of Mr. Forster, grocer and his adjoining neighbor, stood an ancient fabric, whose front was of timber and to all appearance, not more than between two and three hundred years old at the time of its demolition [in 1772] but the rear of this edifice was of Roman brick, mixed with stone and had several arched passages in and about it, built in a very strong and elegant manner. And according to established tradition, this house was the abode and built by Eudo Dapifer, towards the end of the eleventh century".

A curious morceau for the antiquary, the only vestige of the ancient mansion still remains upon the spot. When about sixteen or seventeen years before Morant wrote the old house was wholly taken down and rebuilt by the then owner, a certain window sill of oak bearing a much disputed date was removed from the timber front and placed as the sill of another window, in the rear of the new building where from an enclosed yard it may still be seen.

This ancient dwelling called by the name of Le stone house was lived in by John and Alice Wilbore after Nicholas Wilbore and Ann were living in Braintree. Evidently having no need for it Nicholas sold the house to William Simpson, Jr., in 1550.

Cp 25 (2) 45 Elizabeth Hilary / 26 (1603). Final concord between John Taylecott plaintiff and Nicholas Wilbore and Elizabeth his wife deforciants concerning two messuages and two gardens with appurtenances in Braintree. Nicholas Wilbore and Elizabeth grant the property for themselves and their heirs to said John and his heirs for ever. To be paid 80 pds sterling. [This John Talcott must be of the same family as the one which went to America.]

Cp 25 (2) Essex, 45 Elizabeth Hilary 126 (1603). Final concord between Thomas Wilbore plaintiff and Nicholas Wilbore and Elizabeth his wife deforciants concerning 4 acres of land with appurtenances in Barking. Nicholas and Elizabeth for themselves and their heirs grant the land to Thomas and his heirs forever. Thomas paid 41 pds sterling. [This is the land given to Nicholas Wilbore in the will of his father Nicholas, and is selling to his brother Thomas Wilbore.]

Cp 25 (2) Essex, 8 James I Easter 293 (1611). Final concord between William Wilbore plaintiff and Robert Wilbore deforciant concerning half of messuage, of one garden, one orchard, sixty six acres of land, eight acres of meadow, twenty acres of pasture, six acres of wood, with appurtenances, Stysted and Barking. Robert for himself and heirs grants the land to William his heirs forever. William paid 41 pds sterling. [This is the land mentioned in the will of Nicholas Wilbore, their father, in 1583. The Barking mentioned is really Bocking.]

1597. William and Margaret Sydey plaintiffs against Nicholas and Elizabeth Wilbore defendants for land in great and Little Maplestead, said land being property of Robert Harrington, late husband of the plaintiff, Elizabeth Wilbore, who devised the same to her for life.

John Wilbore, Shoemaker
Apprenticeships at Braintree

1631. This indenture. Witnesseth that Mary Wilbore the daughter of John Wilbore of Braintree in the county of Essex, Shoe maker, deceased, apprenticed unto Richard Page weaver by consent of the church wardens for poor people of the parish of Braintree aforesaid, for the time being to learn the art from him after the manner of an apprentice, to serve and dwell from and after the date of these present indentures unto the full term of seven years from the said date, etc., 19 Dec. 1631.

Witnesseth that John Wilbore son of John Wilbore of Braintree in the co of Essex, shoemaker both with the consent of the Church wardens of Braintree aforesaid for the poor of the parish of said towne, puts himself apprentice unto Thomas Stebbings of Braintree aforesaid with and after the manner of an apprentice to live and dwell from and after the date of this, unto full service of thirteen years from the date. 19 Dec. 1631.

The above John Wilbore the father having died before 1631 could not have gone to Old Providence.

According to the Providence papers at the record office at Chelmsford, county Essex, the following is given. We whose names are hear underwritten do promise unto Thomas Barrington due for the next ship bound for the Ile of Providence, under his name 25 Jany 1631.

Thos Maynard, Henry Neale, Martin Cofield.
Signed also viz the same day by me, John Wilbore.
According to the oath book of Colchester, there were four Wilbores Who came to that place about 1500 from the West Riding of Yorkshire, Namely Nicholas Wilbore who was born in Middleton, Richard Wilbore who was born in Notton, Thomas Wilbore who was born in Royston, And John Wilbore who was born in Royston. This John Wilbore Married Joan Rand and Widow of John Rand and according to the court rolls of Colchester, was executrix of her late husband, John Rand.

As Royston and Notton are in the same parish, the last three men were born practically in the same town, and as John and Richard Wilbore were both mentioned in the will of Nicholas Wilbore in 1557, it is safe to say that they were nearly related. But which one of these men, is the great-grandfather of Samuel Wilbore who went to America, or which is the father of Nicholas Wilbore who married Ann? From all of the evidence it would seem that Thomas Wilbore was the father of John Wilbore Jr who married Alice Smith, Nicholas Wilbore who married Ann, and Joan Wilbore, the sister of Nicholas who married Ann, and who married George Brett, so I have placed them as such, in a tentative way. Nicholas Wilbore who made his will in 1557, had no son Nicholas, and John and Thomas Wilbore, unfortunately, had no wills, but if they had, it would probably have solved the difficulty. The rest of the pedigree is well proved by the foregoing wills, manor rolls, etc.

1. Thomas[1] Wilbore, of Colchester, co. Essex, England, taylor, born in Royston in the West Riding of Yorkshire, we will say about 1482, died between 20 Jan. and 22 June 1564. He married Alice———.

According to the court rolls of Colchester of 30 Sept. 1549 Thomas Wilbore, born at Ruston (Royston), Yorkshire, tailor, was made justice of the peace. On 6 Sept. 1555 there were bailiffs elected for the common council. On the head ward was Thomas Wilbore, William Simpson, John Jankyn, and John Dethick. On this date Richard Wilbore was admitted a burgess, born in Notton in co. York, sherman or shereman, the sureties being Thomas Wilbore and Richard Whale.

On 30 Sept. 1562 Thomas Wilbore and his wife, Alice, made a deed, and for the consideration of £26 13s and 4d paid to them by William Ram of St. Peters parish in Colchester, and sold and confirmed to "said Wm Ram all that tenement with garden adjoining, formerly of John Holmes and afterwards of Thos Lawrence and later of James Cole and Ellen his wife, situate in Holy Trinity parish, beyond Le shire gate between the lot called Berishane on the north side, and the highway leading towards a certain grene called St. John's Grene on the south side which tenement and garden I had myself from Henry Asshely, late of Colchester, shereman and Joan his wife as can more fully be seen by deed of Jany 7, 1558. To have and to hold by William Ram and Marion his wife, dated Sept. 30 1562".

Further from the Colchester Court Rolls, 20 Jan. 1562. "Thomas Wylbore in court against Thomas Vincent for trespass. 4 d." 22 June 1564. "Alice Wilbore, widow, and adm. of the goods and chattels of Thomas Wilbore, Deceased v George Wright for debt 11s and 4 d."

Probable children, born probably in Colchester:

2. i. JOHN,[2] b., we will say, about 1502.
3. ii. NICHOLAS, b., we will say, about 1504.
iii. JOAN, m. in Coggeshall, co. Essex, 21 Oct. 1566, GEORGE BRETT of Great Bardfield. She was named in the will of William Wilbore of Halstead, being her nephew, as aunt Brett.

2. JOHN[2] WILBORE, JR. (? Thomas[1]), of Colchester, was born, we will say, about 1502. He married ALICE SMITH, sister of Edward Smith who married Ursula, and Robert Smith, all formerly of Hadleigh, co. Suffolk.

John[2] Wilbore, Jr., was owner of Le stone house in 1535, which was opposite, or across the street from the old town hall since torn down and replaced by the present town hall. This building with grounds was sold back and forth by John[2] and Nicholas[2] Wilbore and wife Ann of Braintree.

He is generally given as John Wilbore, Junior, tayler, but was named as wool draper in the court rolls of 1529.

John[2] Wilbore, Jr., had no will, but his wife Alice made her will on 20 Dec. 1571 (See will No. 3). In it she names her children, William, Edward, Alice, Margaret, John, Thomas, Robert, and Richard Wilbore, and her brother, Robert Smith.

Children:

i. JOHN.[3]
ii. THOMAS.
iii. ROBERT.
iv. RICHARD
v. WILLIAM.
vi. EDWARD.
vii. ALICE.
viii. MARGARET.

3. NICHOLAS[2] WILBORE (? Thomas[1]), woolen draper, born, we will say, about 1504, died in 1583. He married ANN———.

His will was made 27 Nov. 1582 and proved in Braintree 16 Sept. 1583 (see will No. 4).

Nicholas[2] Wilbore was originally of Colchester, but in 1548 we find him in Braintree, when he sold Le stone house to John[2] Jr., and Alice Wilbore of Colchester. He was very well to do with much real estate and other property in Braintree, Stisted, and Bocking. He evidently hired much help in the woolen business and also owned a large hill in Braintree which was used by him as pasturage for his sheep, called Skitts Hill. I think that we can place Nicholas in the class with the Paycock family. a well-known family of woolen merchants of the sixteenth century, whose house is still in existence in Coggeshalle, co. Essex.

According to Nicholas' will he owned the following real estate: In Braintree, Cherkson and the Gaunte. Tenement called Wolnes in Stisted, land he bought of Robert Polye called by the name of Cops Wood, Blumster, Hamstall, his house called the checker with tenements, a field called Bartletts, The Slade, a meadow called Wheland farm in Stisted, a grove called Hollis Grove and a coppiehold shop in the market place of Braintree with two rooms over same, and a hill called Skitts Hill.

Children, born probably in Braintree:

4. i. THOMAS.[3]
5. ii. JOSEPH.

iii. WILLIAM, was buried in Halstead, co. Essex, 10 Oct. 1616; m. ELLEN ———. He was mentioned in the will of his father in 1582. He moved to Halstead where he was a woolen draper and had much property. He attended the parish church in Halstead where the Coggeshalles, later of America, attended and on the wall of this church are figures of the Coggeshalle family.

William and Ellen Wilbore had no children, and consequently his will, made 20 Jan. 1613 and proved in 1615, is very informative as to the Wilbore family in Braintree (see will No. 6). He mentions all of his brothers and sisters and most of their children. Unfortunately his will is not the original, but in a book which has been mutilated and some of it torn off at the bottom of each page. Although not much of the will is gone some of the names are missing.

By the will of his father he received one-half of the tenements called Wolnes in Stisted and Bocking and one-half the lands bought by his father of Robert Poleye. The other half was left to his brother Robert, who eventually sold it back to his brother William (see Feet of Fines).

6. iv. ROBERT.
7. v. NICHOLAS.

vi. SUSAN, m. ROBERT NICHOLSON. Susan was not mentioned in the will of her father, but was named in that of her brother William in 1613.

Children (surname Nicholson):

1. Joseph.
2. Jane, m. William Wells.

vii. MARY, m. JOHN LAWRENCE. She was not married in the will of her father and was mentioned in that of her brother William in 1613.

Children (surname Lawrence):

1. Thomas. 2. Marion.

vii. ANN, m. ——— BAKER. Ann was mentioned in the will of her father and also that of her brother William in 1613.

Children (surname Baker):

Other children.

4. THOMAS[3] WILBORE (Nicholas,[2] Thomas[1] ?), of Braintree, co. Essex, died according to the manor rolls in Braintree in 1628. He married, first, ANN GOODAYE, died before 1610, daughter of Robert Goodaye of Sawbridgeworth, co. Essex; and secondly, FRANCES———.

He is mentioned in the will of his father and that of his brother William of Halstead. From his father he inherited in 1583 a large pasture called Skitts Hill in Braintree and two shops in the market place in Braintree, called le Cornhill. Also a stall in mercer's row belonged to him. In 1597 he still owned this property.

Children, born presumably in Braintree:

8. i. THOMAS.[4]

ii. JOHN, of Braintree. m. EDITH ———. According to the manor rolls he received in 1606 a shop on the Braintree market place called Le Cornhill and also in 1620 one-half of Skitts Hill. In 1625 the shop was put to the use of Ralph Harrison and in 1632 one-half of Skitts Hill was surrendered to Geoffrey Watts of Great Leighs.

iii. MARY, mentioned in the will of her Uncle William of Halstead.

iv. SARAH, named in the will of her Uncle William.

v. ANN, mentioned in the will of her Uncle William, m. JOHN OSBORN.

5. JOSEPH[3] WILBORE (Nicholas,[2] Thomas[1] ?), of Braintree, married MARY———.

They lived in the house on the Gaunte given him by his father. This was a passageway on the south of the church of St. Michaels. He is also mentioned in the will of his brother William in 1613 as "brother Joseph Wilbore deceased". He received also from his father a grove called Hollis Grove, sometimes called Halls Grove, situated partly in Braintree and partly in Bocking. This grove passed eventually to his widow and his four sons.

Widow Mary or Marie, as she is called in the will, made her will (No. 8) on 10 Nov. 1620, which was proved in 1623. In it she gives to son William the shop next the street and the little garden. Also to son John and Joan, his wife, and son Nicholas. Son William to have the rest and residue.

According to the Braintree Manor Rolls in 1622 Hollis Grove went to widow Mary as tennant and then to her three sons, Nicholas, John and William, Joseph, the other son, being dead. In 1642 Nicholas, John, and William are admitted again to Hollis Grove.

Children, born presumably in Braintree:

i. JOSEPH,[4] d. young before May 1622.

ii. NICHOLAS, living in Braintree in 1642 when admitted to Hollis Grove; m. JANE ———. He had a son Nicholas, who, in 1643 had use of one-half of Hollis Grove; in 1645 it was put to the use of Thomas Totman. Nicholas Wilbore, Sr., also owned three acres called Bedells, and in 1606 land called Le Feu, being a parcel of Bedells containing six acres, which was sold to Richard Skinner.

9. iii. JOHN.

iv. WILLIAM, d. in Braintree in 1660; m. (1) ,———; m. (2), in Shalfford, co. Essex, 7 Oct. 1641, MARGARET DAWSON. He had a son William, who, in 1667, sold one-half part of Hollis Grove to William Bixby, feltmaker, of Braintree. The name Wilbore disappears from the manor rolls of Braintree in 1667. In 1695-1711 a property called Wilbores changed hands in Coggeshalle, co. Essex.

6. ROBERT[3] WILBORE (Nicholas,[2] Thomas[1] ?), of Braintree, married DOROTHY———. He is mentioned in the wills of his father and Uncle William. He received one-half of a tenement called Wolnes in the parishes of Stisted and Bocking, his brother William having received the other half. In 1611 Robert sells his half of Wolnes to his brother William.

The following is from the Feet of Fines: "Final Concord between William Wilbore, plaintiff, and Robert Wilbore, deforciant, concerning one-half of a messuage, of one garden and of one orchard of sixty-six acres of land and eight acres of meadow, of twenty acres of pasture in Stysted and Bocking.

Robert for himself and heirs grants the lands to William and his heirs forever". For this land William paid forty-one pounds or forty-one sterling. CP, 25 (2) Essex. 8 James I (1611) Easter/ 293. Robert Wilbore's wife, Dorothy, refused to give up her rights to this land.

Children, mentioned in the will of his brother William Wilbore in 1613:

i. ROBERT.[4]
ii. WILLIAM.

Other children mentioned in the will of brother William Wilbore, but names are not given.

7. NICHOLAS[3] WILBORE (Nicholas,[2] Thomas[1] ?), of Braintree and Sible Hedingham, co Essex, according to the parish records of Sible Hedingham was buried there 11 Sept. 1611. He was the father of Samuel Wilbore, the emigrant to America. He married, first, MARY PLUME, baptized in Great Yeldham 9 Oct. 1566, died before 1597, when Elizabeth, the second wife of Nicholas, is mentioned in the Court of Chancery. Mary Plume was the daughter of Robert and Elizabeth (Purchas) Plume and granddaughter of John and Elizabeth Plume of Great Yeldham, co. Essex. Robert Plume held several halls in Yeldham Magna, including Spaynes Hall in Yeldham Magna and Hawkeden Hall in Clare, co. Suffolk. A member of his family, John[4] Plume (Robert,[3] Robert,[2] John[1]), went to America and is the ancestor of the Plum family there. Nicholas[3] Wilbore married, secondly, before 1597, ELIZABETH (THICKINES) HARRINGTON, widow of Robert Harrington, vicar of Sible Hedingham, who was buried there 10 Aug. 1694. He was a graduate of Cambridge, and his record is given in Alumni Canabriengensis, vol. 2, p. 311. "Harrington, Robert, Matric pensioner, from Queens Easter 1567 of Essex. B.A. 1570. Ma. 1574. B.D. 1582. Fellow 1572. Rector of Sible Hedingham, Essex 1574-1594. Died 1594." He was married in Black Notley, co. Essex, 1 May 1581, to Elizabeth Thickines. This marriage was discovered by Mr. Waldo C. Sprague in 1958.

From the Chancery Proceedings of Elizabeth, W. W. 20 #32 (1597). Nicholas Wilbore and Elizabeth, his wife, the plaintiffs, and Margaret and William Sydey, defendants, claim by devise a messuage and land in Much Maplestead and Little Maplestead late of Robert Harrington, clerk, late husband of the plaintiff, Elizabeth, who devised the same to her for life.

The will of Robert Harrington was destroyed; so there was no evidence of Elizabeth Wilbore's rights to ownership of this land.

Elizabeth (Thickines) Harrington, the second wife of Nicholas[3] Wilbore, made her will (No. 9), 12 May 1619, and it was proved in Braintree 21 March 1624. In it she names her sons, Edmund, Robert, and Samuel. She mentions also her son, John Harrington, and daughter, Elizabeth Wutton, wife of John Wutton. At first it would seem that all of these children mentioned, with the exception of John, were Wilbores. As the last names were not given, it was impossible to tell what their last names were. After more study it is plain that all of these children are Harringtons, with the exception of Samuel Wilbore. She also mentioned her brothers-in-law, Francis Whiston and Francis Walford.

Nicholas[3] Wilbore was mentioned in the will of his father in 1582, by which he received the house called Cherkin with tenements, his field called Bartlett's field. He was also mentioned in the will of his Uncle William, but it is so torn that some of the names are gone.

Children by first wife, born probably in Braintree:

10. i. ROBERT.[4]
ii. MARY, m. WILLIAM LUKYN of Mashbury, co. Essex.
iii. ELIZABETH, m. in Great Yeldham, 12 April 1609, JOHN HARVEY of the same place.
iv. NICHOLAS, linen draper, d. s.p. in Stoke-Justa-Clare in 1644; m. FRANCES ———. His will made 2 Aug. 1638, was proved 17 April 1644 (No. 10). He leaves to his nephew, Edmund Wilbore, son of his brother Robert of Sible Hedingham, 12d.

Child by second wife, born probably in Braintree:

11. v. SAMUEL, b. between 1594 and 1600.

8. THOMAS[4] WILBORE (Thomas,[3] Nicholas,[2] Thomas[1] ?), married EDITH———. He was living in Braintree in 1628, according to the Manor Rolls.

In 1606 he received a shop in the market place of Braintree called Le Cornhill, and in 1620 one-half of Skitts Hill, property originally belonging to his grandfather, Nicholas[2] Wilbore.

Children, born probably in Braintree:

i. JOHN,[5] eldest son, who in 1628 received a shop in the market place with rooms overhead, which in 1644 he sold to Kellam Collins, gentleman.
ii. THOMAS, the younger, whose daughter, Priscilla Wilbore, was mentioned in 1626.

9. JOHN[4] WILBORE (Joseph,[3] Nicholas,[2] Thomas[1] ?), of Braintree in 1642 and admitted that year to land called Hollis Grove with brothers, Nicholas and William, married in Felsted, co. Essex, 6 Aug. 1616, JOAN DRANE. They were the parents of William Wilbore of Portsmouth, R. I.

It was probably this John who, in 1631, signed his name to the agreement with several other Braintree men to join the settlement at the Isle of Old Providence, which is off the coast of South America. In 1641 the Spaniards drove the English from the two Islands of Providence, and this is probably why John Wilbore and his two brothers were admitted the next year to land called Hollis Grove, which was partly in Braintree and partly in Bocking.

Children:

i. JOHN,[5] b. in Bocking in 1617; buried in November 1617.
12. ii. WILLIAM.

10. ROBERT[4] WILBORE (Nicholas,[3] Nicholas,[2] Thomas[1] ?), of Sible Hedingham, was buried there 15 May 1619. He married SUSAN———, buried in Sible Hedingham 12 Feb. 1619. It would seem as the whole family died in the same year, with the exception of one, that they perhaps died of the plague or some other epidemic.

Children:

i. ROBERT,[5] bapt. in Great Yeldham 8 May 1614; buried in Sible Hedingham 12 April 1619.
ii. EDMUND, bapt. in Great Yeldham 13 July 1615. He was mentioned in the will of his Uncle Nicholas of Stoke by Clare in 1638.
iii. SUSAN, bapt. in Sible Hedingham 12 Feb. 1618/19; d. there 12 Feb. 1618/19.

11. SAMUEL[4] WILBORE (Nicholas,[3] Nicholas,[2] Thomas[1] ?), born probably in Braintree, co. Essex, England, between 1594 and 1600, died in Boston, Mass., 24 July 1656. He married, according to the Parish Records of Sible Hedingham, co. Essex, 13 Jan. 1619/20, ANN SMITH.

He was executor of his mother's will, namely Elizabeth Wilbore, which was made 25 Feb. 1624 and proved in Sible Hedingham 21 March 1624. In her will she mentions her three sons by her former husband, Robert Harrington, namely, John, Edmund, and Robert Harrington, and daughter, Elizabeth Wutton, the wife of John Wutton. She mentions her son, Samuel Wilbore, and her two brothers-in-law, Francis Whiston and Francis Walford. Whether these last two were husbands of two sisters or were brothers-in-law of her late husband, it is impossible to tell. She also mentions her two grandchildren, John and Elizabeth Wutton. She leaves the rest and residue to her sons, Samuel Wilbore and Robert Harrington, and makes them administrators of her will. It was Samuel, however, who proved it.

Samuel Wilbore is also mentioned in the will of Robert Wilbore, his half-brother, in Sible Hedingham. Samuel signs as witness to this will. We have photostats of two of Samuel's signatures in America and three signatures in England. In America he signed the Portsmouth, R. I., compact, in 1638; and he also signs a letter written to the authorities in Boston, asking permission to return there. In England he signed as witness to the will of his half-brother, Robert, in 1619, and as a witness to the will of Samuel Allen in Sible Hedingham in 1626. His signature appears also as a juror of the same place with the signature of his half-brother, John Harrington. A Leonard Harrington also signs. This document dated the 18th day of March 1624 at Sible Hedingham is also signed by nine others with their marks, which indicates that these three had a better education than the average in Sible Hedingham. See this jury list at the public record office, London; State papers, Domestic, Charles the first (S.P. 16), volume 140, F 100.

Samuel Wilbore, like his ancestors for generations, both in the West Riding of Yorkshire and co. Essex, England, was in the wool business after he came to New England.

A deed is recorded among the Suffolk County Deeds in Boston wherein Samuel Wilboare, merchant, and Elizabeth, his wife, sell a house and shop on Milk Street which he owned with Richard Sherman. For twenty-five pounds Richard Sherman bought the east half of the house and the whole barn, etc. Sherman being of the Dedham Shermans and likewise in the wool business knew Samuel Wilbore when in England.

It would seem that Samuel soon regretted that he had followed Ann Hutchinson to Portsmouth, for at the Massachusetts Historical Society we find the following letter written by him. He humbly makes the request that he be permitted to return, and eventually does, for we find the record of his joining the church of Boston with wife Elizabeth in 1645. The following is taken from "The Winthrop Papers", vol. 4, 1638-1644, published in 1944. This letter is in Samuel's own handwriting.

"May 16, 1639.

"Whereas I joyned with others in presentinge to the corte a writing called a petition or remonstrance, I confes it was far beyond my place and ranke to use such unbeseming exspresyons to those who the Lorde hath set over me, thearfor, intreat your Worships to understand that it is only the cause that made me doe it and for my rashness and ofence thearin, I humbly crave your worships prayers, to the Lord for pardon and pardon from yourselfes; I have been noe enimy of this state, nor through the assistance of the Lord never shall.

[Signed] Samuel Wilbore"

Children, born in Sible Hedingham:

i. SAMUEL,[5] bapt. 10 April 1622; d. in Taunton, Mass., in 1697; m. probably in Portsmouth, R. I., HANNAH PORTER, d. 6 April 1722, daughter of John and Margaret (Odding) Porter.
ii. ARTHUR, bapt. 28 Dec. 1623; buried in Sible Hedingham 2 Sept. 1624.
iii. WILLIAM, bapt. 27 Aug. 1626; buried in Sible Hedingham 28 Jan. 1627/8.
iv. JOSEPH (JESPHEFF), bapt. 28 Feb. 1629/30; d. in Taunton, Mass., 27 Aug. 1691; m. ELIZABETH FARWELL, bapt. in Boston, Lincolnshire, England, 27 May 1630, daughter of Henry and Olive (Welby) Farwell.
v. SHADRACH (SIDREAKE), bapt. 6 Sept. 1631; d. in Taunton, Mass., in February 1697/8; m. (1), MARY DEAN, d. in Taunton 27 March 1691; m. (2), 13 Sept. 1692, HANNAH (BASS) PAINE, daughter of Samuel and Ann (Savil) Bass of Boston and Braintree, Mass., and widow of Stephen Paine.

12. WILLIAM[5] WILBORE (John,[4] Joseph,[3] Nicholas,[2] Thomas[1] ?), of Braintree, co. Essex, England, and Portsmouth, R. I., married either in England or America, MARTHA———.

It is not known when William came to America, but according to the Manor Rolls of Braintree he bought land in Braintree of Jonas Webb on 30 March 1647, as William Wilbore, son of John. On 2 Jan. 1650 he sold this land to Thomas Rowell and Mary, his wife. According to these transactions William was not married in 1647, for usually in the Manor Rolls the name of the wife is given when a person buys land.

We do not hear of William again until 10 July 1654, when his cousin, Samuel Wilbore, transferred ten acres of land to him in Portsmouth, land that belonged formerly to Thomas Emmons.

William Wilbore's will was made 1 March 1710 and proved in Portsmouth 15 Aug. 1710 (see "Wildbores in America"). His children were never recorded, but are all given in his will. Arnold's "Vital Records of Rhode Island" gives a list of his children in both Little Compton and Tiverton, with the years of birth, but on looking at the original records in Little Compton they are not to be found. They are, however, in Otis Wilbor's transcript of the records in Little Compton and are also given in the same way in a fairly modern book in Tiverton, which gives the year of birth of the children and also his own birth, namely, 1630. This would seem to be the work of Otis Wilbor, who died in 1856, and consequently the births given are only approximate. The original will of William Wilbore is in the hands of Mrs. Edward P. Garland of Wellesley Hills, Mass., a descendant. In signing William always makes a mark or "W" for Wilbore. His lack of education is rather surprising when you consider that his cousin, Samuel, and his three sons could write, and the son, Shadrach, was a beautiful penman. This situation would seem to come from a difference of environment and would be easily explained if we knew that John Wilbore of Braintree, who went to the Isle of Old Providence off South America, was William's father, John.

If John Wilbore returned to Braintree in 1641, after the Spaniards conquered Old Providence, and brought with him our William, it would fit in with his buying the land in Braintree in 1647.

Children, probably born in Portsmouth:

i. MARY,[6] b. about 1654; d. 17 April 1720; m. JOSEPH MOWREY, b. in 1647, d. 27 May 1716, son of Roger and Mary (Johnson) Mowrey.
ii. JOSEPH, b. about 1656; d. in Little Compton 4 May 1729; m. 4 May 1683 ANN BROWNELL, b. in 1654, d. in Little Compton 2 April 1729 daughter of Thomas and Ann (Bourne) Brownell.
iii. JOHN, b. in 1658; m. HANNAH———.
iv. THOMAS, b. about 1659; m. MARY———.
v. WILLIAM, b. in December 1660; d. in Little Compton in 1738; m. (1),——— TALLMAN, daughter of Peter and Ann (Hill) Tallman; m. (2), JOAN BRIGGS.
vi. MARTHA, b. about 1662; m. 12 May 1681 WILLIAM SHERMAN, b. 3 Oct. 1659, son of Peleg and Elizabeth (Lawton) Sherman.
vii. SAMUEL, b. about 1664; d. in Little Compton in 1740; m. MARY POTTER, daughter of Nathaniel and Elizabeth (Stokes) Potter.
viii. DANIEL, b. about 1666; d. in Swansea, Mass., 28 Nov. 1741; m. ANN BARNEY.
ix. JOANNA, b. about 1668; d. about 1759; m. NATHANIEL POTTER, son of Nathaniel and Elizabeth (Stokes) Potter.

x. Benjamin, b. about 1670; d. in Dartmouth, Mass., in 1729; m. (1), in Little Compton, 22 June 1700, Mary Kinnicut, daughter of Roger and Joanna Kinnicut; m. (2), in Little Compton, 2 Nov. 1710, Elizabeth Head, daughter of Henry and Elizabeth Head.

The Mersea Wilbores

This branch of the Colchester Wilbores, beginning with Nicholas,[1] are related to the Wilbores who went to America, namely, Samuel and William, but did not go to Braintree and Sible Hedingham, co. Essex, as the ancestors of Samuel did, but they also owned land and lived in East and West Mersea, in the east part of co. Essex near the water.

This Nicholas Wilbore, woolen draper, the first Nicholas to settle in Colchester about 1500 from Yorkshire, was of the parish of St. Runwald, and, according to the Oath Book, was born in Middleton or Middletown, in the West Riding of Yorkshire.

We first find record of him in Colchester in 1521, and, according to the Oath Book, he was a woolen draper.

His will (see will No. 1), made in 1557 and proved the same year, mentions a John and Richard Wilbore, who doubtless were the ones who came from Yorkshire with him and without doubt were related to him. He gives to wife Margaret lands and tents in the parish of St. Martins, Colchester, and in West Mersea. After Margaret to her son Nicholas. To son Richard Wilbore he gives tente in Little Brombie called Valence. To Margaret, his eldest daughter, and Margaret, his youngest daughter. To Grace Faction, daughter of my daughter, Johan, who married Robert Faction, my house in the parish of St. Martins.

Widow Margaret made her will (see will No. 2) on 21 March 1565 and it was proved the same year. In it she mentions children, Margaret Greene, wife of Edmund Greene, sons Nicholas and Richard Wilbore. To daughter Jone Pullayne and daughter Cutler, the wife of Nicholas Cutler.

Widow Margaret Wilbore was buried in the parish of St. Nicholas in Colchester in March 1565.

Children:

2. i. Nicholas.
   ii. Richard, who inherited from his father a tent in Little Brombie called Valence and also Leaches and Sturgyns.
   iii. Margaret, the eldest, m. Edward Greene.
   iv. Margaret, the youngest, m. Nicholas Cutler.
   v. Joan, m. (1), Robert Faction; m. (2), ———Pullayne. She inherited her father's house in the parish of St. Martins in Colchester.

2. Nicholas[2] Wilbore (Nicholas[1]), woolen draper, of Colchester and East and West Mersea, married Emme Combes, sister of Edward Combes.

Nicholas inherited his father's house and a tenement in West Mersea, called Barros.

His will (see will No. 4) was made 26 June 1577 as of Colchester and the Diocese of London and was proved 23 Sept. 1578. He names his wife, Emme, sons, Edward and Nicholas Wilbore. To brother Robert Wilbore, sister Greene, sister Cutler, cousin Symells, cousin Thomas Buxton, and brother Edward Combes.

Children:

i. EDWARD,[3] inherited from his father all lands and tenements in the parishes of West and East Mersea and elsewhere in the county of Essex.
ii. ANN.
iii. JANE.
iv. MARY.
v. GRACE, bapt. at St. Nicholas, Colchester, in March 1564.
vi. MARGARET, bapt. at St. Nicholas, Colchester, 16 Dec. 1565.
3. vii. NICHOLAS.

3. NICHOLAS[3] WILBORE (Nicholas,[2] Nicholas[1]), of St. Martins Parish, Colchester, married ANNES or AGNES GYLE, sister of Thomas Gyle of Brightingsea, co. Essex.

He inherited by the will of his father a capital tenement, messuage, rentary, and two gardens in the parish of St. Martins in Colchester.

His will is dated 4 Dec. 1606 of West Mersea. To wife all my tenements, houses, and lands in Colchester for her natural life and also land and tenements in West Mersea. Son Nicholas, under 18 in 1606, to inherit all after death of wife Ann.

Child:

4. i. NICHOLAS.[4]

4. NICHOLAS[4] WILBORE (Nicholas,[3] Nicholas,[2] Nicholas[1]), of Weeley, co. Essex, married FRANCES———.

His will was made 20 Sept. 1645 and he leaves all his property to Frances, she to take care of their two sons.

Children:

i. THOMAS,[5] mentioned in father's will.
ii. NICHOLAS, mentioned in father's will.

Samuel Wilbore

MERCHANT OF BOSTON AND HIS TIME

By Benjamin Franklin Wilbour

Samuel Wilbore, the first of the name in this country, was born according to tradition, about 1585 and during the latter part of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, whose great and wise reign, called the Golden Age of literature, was drawing to its close.

It is from Samuel Wilbore and his family, that all of the Wilbores or Wilbors living in America today, are descended. The spelling of the name since his time has undergone many changes, and the variations are very numerous, some of which are as follows:

Wilbore, Wilbor, Willbor, Wilbur, Wilbour, Wilber, Wilbar, and some others, not forgetting Wildbore and Wildboare. According to a book on Norman names in England the name was a Norman one and was at first spelled Welleburro. This is probably the earliest spelling of the name of which we have record and it was used as early as 1066 when William the Conqueror came to England with his large band of nobles, from Normandy. It is not unreasonable to suppose that our first ancestor in England came with the Conqueror at this time, as there were Welleburros living in England in the twelfth century. The name was afterwards anglicized to Wildbore or Wildboare.

Michael Wilbore of Clavering in Essex in the sixteenth century, changed the spelling of his name from Wilbore to Welbore, probably to get back as near as possible to the old Norman spelling.

There are people living in Yorkshire today who cling to Wildbore as the way to spell their name, but I have failed to come across this spelling in the United States. However, the spelling of this or any other surname has no significance, as far as relationship is concerned, for in my own line there has been five variations, everyone spelling the name as it seems best or easiest to him or as his father or grandfather spelled it before him.

The most common spelling in America is Wilbur and Wilber.

The most uncommon is Wilbour and is used by most of the branches in Little Compton, R. I.

The earliest date that we have connected with Samuel Wilbore, the Immigrant, is December first, 1633, when he with his wife, Ann, joined the First Church of Boston. This record is in the old church book with several other new members.

This is the oldest date connected with Samuel, discovered so far, and it is not likely that he waited very long after arriving in America before joining the church. So we may say, with comparative safety, that he and his family arrived here near this time.

But why did Samuel come to America, or what was the reason for his emigration from England to a wilderness; from a civilized country of comparative ease to face the hardships of an uncivilized one?

In the following pages I will endeavor to answer these questions as best I can with the meager data at the present time available to the enquiring genealogist and historian.

At the end of the reign of Queen Elizabeth in 1603, James the First, the son of the unfortunate Mary, Queen of Scots, came to the throne. After a reign of about twenty-two years, his son, Charles the First, began his reign in the year 1625. It was his rule or rather mis-rule, that largely caused the dissatisfaction of the Puritan element then in England. Charles being a strong Catholic, persecuted the Protestants and also the Puritans, who were also a branch of the Protestant church. All religious meetings of the Protestants had to be carried on secretly. Not only were the people denied religious freedom, but their civil liberties were also interfered with, and they were oppressed by extortionate taxation. It was on account of these conditions that the Puritans removed to other lands. Many despairing of success in their struggles against the religious tyranny of the King, sought religious peace in both Holland and America.

The first step in the great emigration was taken in 1628, by John Endicott and five associates, who procured a grant from what had been the Plymouth branch of the old Virginia company. Endicott with sixty followers took possession of the grant in 1629 and the first settlement was made in Salem. But the important migration broadened into a large strong and wealthy corporation, called the "Governor and company of the Massachusetts Bay." Laud at this time was Archbishop of Canterbury and the despotic head of the church. It was his task to uproot Protestantism. The King had overthrown the constitution and through his courts of the star chamber and high commission, imprisoned, pillaged, flogged and mutilated in the spirit of the inquisition. Such were the conditions in England at the time that Samuel sought refuge in America.

On August second, 1629, the second step was taken at Cambridge when an agreement was signed by twelve gentlemen, including John Winthropp, who later became governor of the colony. On the eighth of April of the following year, the fleet, including eight hundred people, called the Winthropp Fleet, started for the new world. In this company were many well educated and college bred men, including such men as Winthropp, Thomas Dudley, who afterwards became governor, Sir Richard Saltonstall and many others of good family and high standing in England.

The Winthropp Fleet arrived in New England on June 12, 1630, where, at first, they joined the colony at Salem. They stayed there but a short time and then moved to what is now Charlestown, but the springs of that place were not sufficient to supply them with water. They then resolved to move again. William Blackstone, a studious recluse, who was then living at what was called Tri-Mountain, where he had settled earlier, and which was situated just across the river from them, invited the colonists to join him as there was plenty of water, and which they very soon did. This place was later called Boston, from the town of Boston, or St. Botolphs town, in England, from whence many of the colonists had come. It has been claimed that Samuel Wilbore came with the Winthropp Fleet, but I think that this claim is erroneous. It seems improbable that a man, with his strong religious tendencies, would wait three years before joining the church.

There have been several traditions that he first went to Holland from England and migrated from that country to America. This is quite probable, for many of the English colonists first went to Holland where many of them were educated in the university at Leyden there. Many of these later sailed for America. A good illustration of this is Robert Forman, who came from Bucks in England and went to Flushing, Holland, where his name has recently been discovered on the church register. His grandson later married a granddaughter of Samuel, in America.

There is also a shipping list in existence which is given in the "Genealogist," number twenty-three, new series and page 34. This list is dated February 21, 1631-2, and states that Anthony Fletcher 30, wife Joan 24, Jane Kelvert 23, Susan Pennington, Jo Wilbore 15 and Jo Cross 30, are on their way to Delft, Holland.

Investigation reveals the fact that John Wilbore is the son of Lawrence Wilbore of Balne, county Yorks, and a relative of the Doncaster Wilbores, he with his mother's brother, Anthony Fletcher, are on their way to Dordreicht, Holland, via Delft. Anthony Fletcher was a merchant adventurer and a member of the English merchant adventurer's company there.

I also find that Wildbore, according to a book on Dutch family names is a very old name in Haarlem and Amsterdam. It is possible that one of these Wilbores bore some relationship to Samuel.

On September 4, 1633, the ship Griffin arrived at Boston bringing John Cotton, later minister of the First Church at Boston. She having in all, two hundred passengers, including Thomas Hooker "and many men of good estate."

It is possible that Samuel came on this ship or he may have come in his own ship as he was a merchant and evidently had one, which he used in his trade with the colonists.

There is another tradition that is told by John R. Wilbor in his "Wildbores in America," published in 1907. Mr. Wilbor says: "The story was that a colony of English emigrants, among whom were some families of Wildbores, landed on the coast of Maine, near the site of the present city of Portland, about 1616. The supposition being that Samuel and his brother, with their families, were the Wildbores referred to. Shortly after the landing of the Plymouth colony, the remaining members of the Maine colony, their numbers having been depleted by death, joined the Plymouth colony. The further theory being that William was the only remaining child of the brother's family and being a mere child, Samuel took him into his family, where he lived and grew up upon the same footing as Samuel's children. As previously stated I have been unable to verify any of the above, and, while it is plausible, I am unwilling to accept it without some supporting evidence."

Towards the end of this article it is shown that the third wife of Sir Fernando Gorges was a relative of Thomas Wilbore of Clavering in Essex. Gorges was the proprietor of Maine and colonized it, the first settlement being in the neighborhood of Portland. Thomas Bradbury, also a cousin of Gorges wife and the Wilbores in Clavering, was one of Gorges' right hand men. If Samuel came from the Clavering branch of the Wilbore family in England and went to Maine as the tradition says, it was because he was a relative of Gorges' wife.

Such are the traditions that have been told by different members of the family, and it might be very helpful if others would tell all they had heard in reference to the settlement of the Wilbore family in America. Tradition may often be false or distorted, but at the same time it may give just the clue wanted to solve a genealogical problem.

A description of Boston at this time is not at all out of place here. The following is taken from the publications of the Bostonian Society, book number three, page five.

"What is now Boston proper, in 1630 was almost an island, it being connected with the mainland by a neck of land but 200 paces across. This was the domaine of William Baulston a native of Lincolnshire. This neck of land in early days was devoted to the pasturage of cattle with fences and gates and stiles. On the road path to Roxbury, was a fence crossing it, with a gate and stile as early as 1635, which was attended by Samuel Wildbore, and a few years later in 1639, Samuel Sherman had built a cow house near the gate, which was ordered to be removed. In 1644, Joseph Rawlins commenced brick making here, and this industry was attempted several times during the next two centuries."

Samuel Wilbore resided here, with six men under him, and guarded the gate and defences next to Roxbury. The diary of John Elliott, the Apostle to the Indians, has the following entry. "1631 April 14, we began a court of guard upon the neck between Roxbury and Boston whereupon should be always an officer and six men."

What is now Washington Street, ran along this neck. Samuel's house was on this street, and as will be seen later, he sold it to Samuel Sherman.

According to the history of Boston, "It was at a much earlier date than 1650 that the Boston man whose farm was at Muddy River (Brookline) passed through the two gates in traversing the neck, as in that year, Peter Oliver received 15 pounds a year to maintain a highway from Jacob Elliott's to the furtherest gate at the Roxbury line. The earliest local land marks of Boston are very few. It is known that the market place stood where the old State House now stands. State Street was called a primitive way, but was very short, leading only to the water line at Kirby Street. There was also a highway sometimes called High Street, beginning at the head of the dock and leading to Mr. Colbron's field, a little south of Elliott Street, and beyond that was the footway to Samuel Wilbore's field on the neck to Roxbury. This street is now called Washington Street. As Dock Square marks the original landing place where all the shipping came and where all the cargoes would be taken up to the market and the natural path from the market, by the old South Church, to the neck and Roxbury was along Washington Street we see the reason for its existence."

Governor Winthropp's house was where the old South Church now stands, and Ann Hutchinson's home was on the land where the "Old Corner Book Shop" stood later at the corner of Washington and School Streets, and on the left hand side of School Street as you face the Commons.

It was near here on Milk Street that Samuel later lived. Milk Street was where many of the Boston merchants resided and it was the house on this street that Samuel later sold to Richard Sherman.

At the time that Samuel joined the First Church, it was a very rude affair, and built the year before. It was situated on the corner of State and Devonshire Streets. The second building, where he also attended worship on his return from Portsmouth, was built in 1639 and was a larger building made of wood. A picture of this building may be seen in one of the smaller histories of Boston. This building was at the head of State Street, then called Knight Street and was opposite the old market before mentioned. The Rogers building later stood on this spot and the site of the church is marked with a tablet. This second building was destroyed by fire in 1711. In front of this building were the whipping post and stocks. The first man, it is said, to be put in them, was the carpenter who made them, as it was thought that his bill was more than it should have been.

The third building of the society was made of brick and was called the "Old Brick." The present building is on Berkley Street in the Back Bay district of Boston, where many historical tablets are on view, and where a copy of the first book of the church records is kept.

In the year 1634 Samuel and others bought the Boston Common, for the town, from William Blackstone, for the history of Boston has the following entry:

"Our title to Boston common is easily traced. It originally formed a part of the possessions of William Blackstone whose ownership to the Common was acknowledged and confirmed by an entry in the town records as early as 1633, by which it was agreed that William Blackstone shall have fifty acres set off to him near his house in Boston." The town records have the following statement, in reference to Samuel's share in the purchase of the common:

"The tenth day of the ninth month 1634, Item. Edmund Quinsey, Samuel Wilbore, William Baulston, Edward Hutchinson the elder, and William Cheeseborough, constable, shall make and assess all the rates, viz: a rate of thirty pounds to William Blackstone." Blackstone sold the whole parcel of land to the town, excepting only six acres immediately adjoining his house. This land coming into the town as public property was directly committed to the care of Governor Winthropp to "divide and lease such portions in common for ye use of new commers and ye further benefit of ye town." On March 30, 1640, the following statement occurs: "It is agreed that hence forth there shall be no land granted for house plott or garden to any person out of ye open ground or common field which is left between ye Centry Hill and Mr. Colbron's."

In 1634, March 4, Samuel was admitted freeman of the colony. This meant that he could share in the government of the colony and hold office as well. Up to 1641 out of a colony of 4,000 persons, there had been only 1293 who qualified as freemen.

In 1635 Samuel received a grant of land at Rumsey Marsh, now the city of Revere and it is given in the records of the town in the following manner: "The fourteenth of the tenth month 1635, Mr. William Hutchinson, Edmund Quinsey, Samuel Wilbore, William Cheeseboro and John Oliver or four of them shall lay out their proportions of allotments for farms at Rumsey Marsh."

April 7, 1635, it was ordered that "Griffen Montague be sett in the bilboes (stocks) for stealing clap-boards from Mr. Wilbore."

On August 6, 1635, a collection was taken towards the maintenance of a free school and this was the very beginning of the free public school system in America. Mr. Daniel Maude was chosen school master and about twenty people gave to its support including Samuel Wilbore, who gave ten pounds, or about fifty dollars, which in those days was no small sum of money. It indicates that Samuel had plenty of means and was likewise a man interested in education. Governor Winthropp also gave a like sum, and ten pounds as a donation was exceeded by no one else.

Samuel besides having a house at the Roxbury line, had a house in Milk Street. He also had a piece of land on Essex Street, not far from where the Hotel Touraine now stands. Reference is made to this land in the town records.

"The first of the fifth month called July att a meeting this day was granted alsoe a house and garden plott to our brother Samuell Wilbore att the side of Barnaby Dorryfall's house plott and garden." (1637).

The following is also taken from the Boston records:

"The nineteenth of the twelfth month called February was granted unto Henry Gray, Tayler, alsoe a house and garden plott at the Mount upon condition of inoffensive carriage, and to have it on the East side of our brother Samuel Wilbore." (1637).

This land was in what is now Quincy and in those days was called the Mount. This was where many of the followers of Mr. Hooker, the minister settled.

Thomas Lechford speaks of "my old friends Henry Grey and John Grey formerly of Nottinghamshire."

Also from the records of Boston:

"The thirteenth of the ninth month called November 1637 alsoe was granted unto our brother Samuell Wilbore, foure rods in length of the marsh towards the seashore and three rods in depth of the same marsh, next unto the ground he already hath there." This land was near his house on Milk Street, and it would seem from this that his house was very near the seashore.

In this year, a religious controversy arose which was to cause quite a change in Samuel's life. The trouble was caused by the religious ideas of one Mrs. Ann Hutchinson, who had come to Boston three years before. It is very probable that Samuel and others had been followers of her's for some time. However, it eventually led to his banishment from the colony and his subsequent removal to Portsmouth, Rhode Island. Ann Hutchinson arrived in Boston, September 18, 1634, and about a year after the date of Samuel's arrival here and also one year after her favorite teacher, John Cotton, had come to America. She was born at Alford, in Lincolnshire, not far from Boston, England, the daughter of an English clergyman, Francis Marbury by name, who was of a prominent family there. Winthropp says of her, "A woman of ready wit and bold spirit and her husband, a man of mild temper and weak parts and wholly guided by his wife."

According to the historian Palfrey, "A capable and resolute woman, a kind and serviceable neighbor, especially to persons of her own sex in times of sickness, and by these qualities united with her energy of character and vivacity of mind, she acquired esteem and influence."

She was a woman of liberal education, and meetings of the women of the church were held under her direction in which she taught her religious beliefs. Among those who accepted these beliefs were, Sir Harry Vane, the Rev. John Cotton, John Wheelwright, her son-in-law and at first a good share of the Boston church, including Samuel Wilbore and the eighteen other men who eventually shared in his banishment.

Ann Hutchinson taught what is known as Antinomianism. It appeared in Germany in the time of Luther, who vigorously opposed it, and in England during the time of Cromwell. From England it was brought to America by Mrs. Hutchinson. Three spiritual concepts possessed her. She believed that the human soul could and did hold close communication with the divine over Soul.

She also believed in a spiritual justification of the soul of man with God, through faith. She clearly and fearlessly declared herself a teacher of the doctrine of justification through faith, rather than sanctification through works. These doctrines constituted what was styled antinomianism. It was said that such was her mind that she could memorize whole sermons when delivered by others, and would later repeat them at her meetings, with accompanying criticisms. So far did she carry her dislike of the teachings of John Wilson, pastor of the First Church, that she would walk out of the meeting house whenever he began to preach and others of her faith would follow her example. The neighboring churches, strongly opposed this sect. In 1636 the contest became very violent. The dispute diffused itself into every thing. It interfered with the levy of the troops for the Pequot War. It influenced the respect shown to the Magistrates and the assessment of the rates or taxes, and at last the existence of the two opposing parties was considered inconsistent with the public peace.

An ecclesiastical synod was held at Cambridge, then called Newton, on August 30, 1637, and in the following November, Ann Hutchinson was tried by the general court, and together with a number of her associates were sentenced to banishment. The notes taken at the time of the trial in shorthand have been published by the Prince Society. Among these associates thus sentenced, were the nineteen signers of the compact and first settlers of Portsmouth, R. I., and among whom was Samuel Wilbore. Mrs. Hutchinson with her husband and sons joined the new settlement and remained there until 1642, when her husband, having died, she removed with the most of her family to the shore of Pelham Bay in the southeastern part of the State of New York. Near Split Rock in beautiful Pelham Bay is where Ann lived. It was here that she and most of her family were killed in 1643 by the Indians. One child, Ann's daughter Susannah Hutchinson, hid herself away but was soon found by the Indians and taken away in captivity by them. In the treaty of peace of 1645 there was an agreement that she should be restored to her people. This was done and she later became the wife of John Cole, of North Kingstown, R. I. One branch of the Wilbor family is descended from Ann Hutchinson through this daughter, Susannah Cole, whose great grand daughter, Emlin Champlin, married Joseph Wilbor (Joseph, William, Samuel), of Little Compton, R. I., and they have many descendants.

Miss Rugg in her biography of Ann Hutchinson says:

"The place (Pelham Bay) looks safe enough today, yet hardly a retreat for a prophetess."

"In perfectly enameled cars, no less perfectly enameled women glide over impeccable roads. White villas gleam through smoothly pruned trees, suave lawns and gardens show nature well disciplined. A golf course, spruce and trim, offers recreation where white men and red once fought hand and hand."

In this year of 1637 a petition was signed by Samuel Wilbore and many others, addressed to the Church of Boston. I have not been able to find this document as yet, but I think that it is still in existence. It is especially interesting to descendants of Samuel for it bears his signature.

Shortly after the Ann Hutchinson trial, an order of disarmament was issued by the general court, November 2, 1637, at Boston as follows:

"Whereas the opinions and revelations of Mr. Wheelright and Mrs. Hutchinson have seduced and led into dangerous errors many of the people of New England, insomuch as there is just cause of suspicion that they, as others in Germany, in former times may upon some revelation make some suddaine irruption upon those that differ from them in judgement: for prevention whereof, it is ordered that all those whose names are underwritten, shall (upon warning given or left at their dwelling houses) before the thirtieth day of this month of November, deliver at Mr. Cane's house at Boston, all such guns, pistols, swords, powder, shot and match as they shall be owners of, or have in their custody, upon pain of tenn pounds for every default to be made thereof, which arms are to be kept by Mr. Cane till this court shall take further order therein."

Fifty-eight persons were named in the above document, among whom was Samuel Wilbore, William Coddington, John Clark, William Hutchinson, and the rest of the nineteen men who afterwards settled at Portsmouth. "Among the best men in Boston," says Savage in his genealogical dictionary. "And where his character (Samuel's) stood high enough to serve on the jury two months earlier."

Shortly after the above order was issued the following letter referring to Wilbore was written by Thomas Dudley, afterwards governor, addressed to Governor Winthropp. See Massachusetts Historical Collections, fourth series, book 7, page 110:

"Thomas Dudley to John Winthropp, Esquire Governor.

Sir: In answer to yours and what Mr. Coddington hath by word mentioned I say as followeth: That I am content myself. Mr. Wilboare, Mr. Coggeshall, Goodman Freeborn and Richard Carder, shall have license to depart out of this patent within a month hence following, and after to return at their pleasures to remove their families, so to be within halfe a yeare from this day, only Mr. Coddington and Mr. Wilboare are to come and goe and trade and commerce and take their own time for removal of their families. Likewise for Seargant Hutchinson and Sergeant Baulston and for John Porter, I consent to their departure and the release of their fines, provided that they shall have departed, before the thirteenth day of the next month and not to return any more, which if they doe, they are lyable to the payment of their fynes and all three to such further censure as the courte shall think meete. This with my service remembered, I shall leave and rest."

"Yours at command,
THOMAS DUDLEY."

19th of ye 12, 1637.

The following order in the hand of Governor Winthropp is found on the next page of this letter.

"Mr. William Coddington, Mr. John Coggeshall and Mr. Wilboare are licensed to depart out of this jurisdiction and they have liberty, to remove their families and dispose of their estate here in convenient tyme, at their own liberty, and to goe and come at their liberty, except, they or any of them shall be otherwise limited by the general court.

"William Baulston and Edward Hutchinson have license to depart out of this jurisdiction, provided, they submit to the order of the next general court in regard of the consent they lye under."

"Endorsed by Governor Winthropp."

From the above letters is is seen that Samuel Wilbore was a merchant and traded among the colonists. He also is always called Mr. by both Dudley and Winthropp which is a higher distinction in Boston than it would have been in Portsmouth, where he was always thus addressed. This shows without any doubt that Samuel's social position in the colony was very good and much above the average. Social lines at that time were much more tightly drawn than now.

On March 7, 1638, and about three months after the order of banishment, a compact was drawn up by which a number of leading men of the proposed colony incorporated themselves into a "bodie Politick," to the end that they might give their new plantation a formal organization under a chosen leader or governor.

The following compact was probably signed in Boston:

"The 7th day of first month 1638.

"We whose names are underwritten do hereby solemnly in the presence of Jehovah incorporate ourselves into a bodie politick and as he shall help, will submit our persons, lives and estates unto our Lord Jesus Christ, the King of Kings, and Lord of Lords, and to all those perfect and most absolute laws of His, given in His Holy Word of truth, to be guided and judged thereby."

The original compact is at the State House in Providence. The facsimile of the signature of Samuel, used on the certificate of membership in the "Wildbores in America," was copied from his signature on this compact. This is the only place where I have come across his signature, but if the petition of the followers of Ann Hutchinson, before mentioned can be found, his signature will be found on that also.

His name is sixth on the above compact and as they evidently signed in order of their standing in the community, it indicates that he stood quite high there.

This compact must have been signed in Boston, for five days after this event, a summons was issued by the general court of Massachusetts, which is given below.

On the twelfth of March, 1638, a summons is issued against, "Mr. William Coddington, Mr. John Coggeshall, William Baulston, Edward Hutchinson, Samuel Wilbore, John Compton, Henry Bull, Philip Shearman, William Freeborne, and Richard Carder, these having license to depart (summons is to go out for them to appear, if they be not gone before), at the next court, the third month to answer such things as be objected."

These men must have left Boston almost immediately for their new home, for we will see in the following pages that the deed transferring to the English, the Island of Aquidneck, or what is now the Island of Rhode Island, was signed there March 24, 1638, and only twelve days after the above summons, was issued. How they came to settle there is told by Doctor John Clarke, their leader and the most scholarly man of them all. The following is from his book called "Ill News from New England" which was published about this time, in which he tells us in his own words of the settlement of the town of Portsmouth, R. I.

"In the year 1637 I left my native land, and in the ninth month of the same, I (through mercy) arrived in Boston. I was no sooner on shore, but there appeared to me differences among them touching the covenants, and in points of evidencing a man's good estate, some prest hard for the Covenant of Works, and for sanctification to be the first and chief evidences. Others prest as hard for the Covenant of grace that was established upon better promises. To see that they were not able so to bear with others in their different understandings and consciences, as in these uttermost parts of the world to live peaceably together, whereupon I moved the latter, for as much as the land was before us and wide enough with the proffer of Abraham to Lot, and for peace sake, to turn aside to the right hand or to the left. The motion was readily accepted and I was requested with some others to seek out a place which I was ready to do, and thereupon by reason of the suffocating heat of the Summer before, I went north to be somewhat cooler, but the Winter following proved so cold that we were forced in the Spring to make towards the South; so having sought the Lord for direction, we all agreed that while our vessel was passing about a large and dangerous Cape, we would cross over by land, having Long Island and Delaware Bay in our eie for the place of our residence; so to a town called Providence we came, which was begun by one Mr. Roger Williams, who for matter of conscience had not long before been exiled from the former jurisdiction, by whom we were courteously and lovingly received, and with whom we advised about our design. He readily presented two places before us in the same Narragansetts Bay, the one upon the main called Sow-wames, the other called then Acquidneck now Rode-Iland; we enquired whether they would fall in any other Patent, for our resolution was to go out of them all; he told us (to be brief) that the way to know that, was to have recourse unto Plymouth; so our vessell as yet not being come about, and we thus blockt up, the company determined to send to Plymouth, and pitcht upon two others together with myself, requesting also M. Williams to go to Plymouth to know how the case stood; so we did and the magistrates thereof very lovingly gave us a meeting; I then informed them of the cause of our coming unto them, and desired them in a word of truth and faithfulness to inform us whether Sow-wames were within their Patent, for we were now on the wing, and were resolved through the help of Christ, to get cleer of all, and be of ourselves, and provided our way were cleer before us, it were all one for us to go further off, as to remain neer at hand; their answer was, that Sow-wames was the garden of their Patent, and the flour in the garden; then I told them we could not desire it; but requested further in the like word of truth and faithfulness to be informed whether they laid claim to the Ilands in the Naraganset Bay, and that in particular called Aquidneck; they all with a cheerful countenance made us this answer, it was in their thoughts to have advised us thereto, and if the provident hand of God should pitch us thereon they should look upon us as free, and as loving neighbours and friends, should be assistant unto us upon the main, etc. So we humbly thanked them, and returned with that answer: So it pleased the Lord by moving the hearts of the natives, even the chiefest thereof, to pitch us thereon and by, other occurrences of which are too large here to relate. So that having bought them off to their full satisfaction, we have possessed the place ever since; and notwithstanding the different understandings and consciences amongst us, without interruption we agree to maintain civil justice and judgement, neither are there such outrages committed amongst us as in other parts of the country are frequently seen."

Roger Williams wrote the deed of the purchase of Aquidneck, from the Indians. This deed dated March 24, 1637-8, from Cannonicus and Miantunomu, "Ye two sachims of the Narrhiggansitts" "sold unto Mr. Coddington and his friends united unto him, the great Island of Aquidneck." The price paid was forty fathoms of white beads the equivalent of fifty to one hundred dollars, and ten coates and twenty howes were given to the inhabitants of the island to remove themselves from off the island before the next winter. The deed was signed by the two sachems and witnessed by Roger Williams and Randall Holden. A further payment of fifteen fathoms of beads was made and also two tarkeepes.

The site of the first settlement was at the head of the cove, north of the present village of Newtown and traces of the settlement are easily located by ancient landmarks.

Mr. Richmond in his "Rhode Island, a Study in Separatism," writes as follows of this settlement:

"As contrasted with each other the Island was refined, flourishing, and aristocratic, while the mainland was primitive, poor and plebian."

Mr. Bicknell in his book called "The Story of John Clarke," declared that there was a very strong and efficient government on the Island but that at Providence, it was quite the reverse, for Roger Williams, although he seems to be better known than the rest, had a very weak government, and in fact in 1641, had to call on Massachusetts for help. Sir Harry Vane, at one time writes to him and says, "How is it that there is so much division among you?"

The government at Portsmouth was very democratic and enlightened, the government at Providence was an autocracy of Land Lords, or a few men held all of the land, and only those who held land could take part in the government. At Portsmouth practically everyone in the community held a piece of land and was entitled to take part in the government of the Town.

There was also perfect freedom of worship on Aquidneck and even the Quakers were welcomed there, but at Providence, Mr. Williams was very bitter against them.

The men who signed the compact were exceptional in education, family position and wealth, and far in advance of their times in both civil and religious liberty. "Among the best men in Boston," says Savage.

The Hon. Lebaron Colt, Senator from Rhode Island declared, "The Rhode Island doctrine of religious freedom stands as the first amendment to the constitution, and is incorporated into the organic law of every State in America" and that in 1640, by the political union of the towns of Newport and Portsmouth, styled the "Colony of Rhode Island," "which in its declared principles and its vital character, illustrated and enforced, in magisterial form and procedure, FOR THE FIRST TIME IN THE WORLD'S HISTORY, the full, clear, comprehensive doctrine of civil and religious liberty in the conduct of a free commonwealth."

Samuel had returned to Boston temporarily in June following his emigration to Rhode Island, for he evidently had petitioned to the court, for the purpose of selling one of his houses at Boston as the town records have the following entry:

"First of the fourth month called June, 1638. Item: Samuel Wilbore to sell his house and garden plott, adjoining that of Barnaby Dorry falls unto Mr. Offley, alsoe his house and ground next Roxbury unto Samuel Sherman."

This first lot of land was on Essex Street, near where the Hotel Touraine now stands. This part of Essex Street was later named Boylston Street.

On June 27, 1638, a train band was formed at Portsmouth, William Baulston and Edward Hutchinson were Sergeants and Randall Holden and Henry Bull, corporals, while Samuel Wilbore was clerk or clark as it was pronounced and spelled in those days.

On November 16, 1638, Messrs. Coggeshall, Hutchinson, Wilbore and Dyer are chosen as a committee "to buy venison of the Indians for three half pence a pound and to sell same at two pence a pound."

On January 11, 1638-9, at Portsmouth, Samuel Wilbore was chosen constable and Henry Bull, seargeant and both were "invested with authority aforesaid and what else shall be found meete to coincide with the office." On the same day, the freemen of Portsmouth acknowledged themselves the legal subjects of his Majesty, King Charles the First.

According to the records of Portsmouth, it was recorded that on the second of the twelfth month 1638, "It is ordered that, that neck of land lying in the great cove, containing about two acres or thereabouts one corner whereof butting on seargant Hutchinson's land and lying northeast and southeast, joining on to the main land of the island is granted to Mr. Samuel Wilbore for him and his rightly to possess and enjoy."

This point of land would seem to be the one shaped like a hook which extends northeast and curves to the southeast in Portsmouth. Samuel senior's land is the point of land north of stonebridge seems to have been all in this vicinity and all of his land near Newtown, where the first settlement was made and in the vicinity of the stone bridge.

Samuel also had land at the "Mount" as it was then called or Mount Wolliston, which is now Quincy. This is evident by a deed made by William Coddington and recorded in Thomas Lechford's note book, page 61. This deed made April 9, 1639, when William Coddington of Aquidneck in New England, Gentleman, sells for thirteen hundred pounds all my house in Boston, etc., and my farmhouse at Mount Wolliston, as well on one side of the river as on the other side and also a parcel of woodland containing thirty acres on the south side of the river and bounded on the allotment of Samuell Wilbore toward the south and another parcel belonging to Judith Quincy on the west side, etc. The deed is dated the fifteenth year of the reign of Charles the First. I have found no further record of this land of Samuel's mentioned except in this deed.

Samuel and his partner, Ralph Earle, built a planing mill at Portsmouth and it was ordered on January 7, 1640, "to sell the town good and sufficient stuff, viz, sawn board at eight shillings the hundred and one-inch inch board at seven shillings, to be delivered at the pit by the waterside."

On the seventh of the seventh month, 1640, it is ordered that Mr. Wilbore shall have forty acres out of Phillip Shearman's lot.

It was later ordered that the above order shall be razed.

On March 1643, the Portsmouth records have this item, but they are so badly torn that there is not much left of it: "It is provided that Mr. Wilbore be allowed——the water side for the landing of his goods——." This last item refers to his trading among the colonists between Portsmouth and Boston and perhaps other places.

The following is from Bradford's history of the Plymouth plantation and dated 1644: "A present was sent by messengers from (the Indian) Pessacus, and left with Winthropp, but when the facts were laid before the commissioners, they directed its return. Captain Robert Harding and Mr. Samuel Wilbore carried the present back to the Narragansetts, with instructions to return it, but they did not carry out their orders and for this, among other faults, they were declared worthy of censure."

"But now another broyle was begun, the Narragansetts, though they had unjustly made war on the Uncas, as it is before declared (an article preceding), and had the winter before this, earnestly pressed the Governor of the Massachusetts Bay that they might still make war upon them, to revenge the death of their Sagamore, which by them had been taken prisoner and was by them put to death, pretending that they had just received and accepted his ransom, and then put him to death.

"But the Governor refused their presents and told them that it was themselves who had done the wrong, and broken the conditions of the peace, etc.

"All things in readiness and some soldiers gone forth and the rest ready to march, the commissioners thought it meete before any hostile act was performed to cause the present to be returned, which has been sent to the Governor of Massachusetts, from the Narragansetts Sachems, but not by him received, but laid up to be accepted or refused as they should carry themselves and observe the covenants. Therefore they violating the same and starting out thus to a war, it was again returned by two messengers and an interpretor.

"The bay had proposed an army to go against them, had they not been prevented in the very interim thus. Capt. Harding informed the court of the difficulty of the enterprise, upon which, the court employed him and Mr. Wilbore, to go to the Narragansetts and take Benedict Arnold to interpret. When they came to Benedict Arnold, he refused to go, without a hundred men in arms upon which Mr. Roger Williams being sent for, to go to the Narragansetts, and also myself, to enquire of us what the minds of these mad peoples were, to kill men, for nothing, upon which I went to Providence a thinking to go with Master Williams.

"But when I came there he was gone with the captain and Mr. Wilbore upon Benedict Arnold's refusal. Stayed their return, and their agreement was to have Pessacus to go into the Bay and Mr. Williams was necessitated to put himself hostage till his return. This news coming into the Bay, did so vex the ministers that Master Cotton preached upon it, that it being so wicked an act to take Mr. Williams with them, being one cast out of the church. It was all one as to ask council of a witch and that those that did it, were worthy to die. Upon which Mr. Wilbore was ready to die for fear he should be hanged. So then they went down and they compelled them to cease wars with the Uncas, and to pay them 500 pounds for charges of court and provisions for soldiers and to leave four of the chief Sachem's children till the money was paid." (From a letter from Winthropp to Samuel Gorton.)

On May 2, 1648, Samuel was executor of the estate of Thomas Lechford. At the time he deposed that when he married the widow of Thomas Lechford, he never received anything of her estate, "not even so much as his said wife's wearing apparell."

Savage says of Robert Harding that he was one of those disarmed in 1637, soon went to Rhode Island but returned to England in 1651 and was a merchant in London.

By 1645, Samuel had returned to Boston to live as the church records the fact that on the twenty-ninth of November of that year Samuel Wilbore and wife Elizabeth had been received into the church there.

Although he retained much of his land there, it is doubtful that he ever returned to Portsmouth to live for any length of time. William Wilbore, Senior, he had already established there as also his son Samuel, Jr., who stood high in the community and was one of five to purchase what is now the town of South Kingstown or Narragansett, and was called the "Pettiquamscutt Purchase."

Samuel's sons Joseph and Shadrach, the town clerk were established at Taunton.

At what date Samuel Wilbore's wife Ann died it is impossible to determine or the date of his later marriage to Elizabeth, who was Elizabeth Lechford, the widow of Thomas Lechford the lawyer and notary of Boston.

Thomas Lechford was quite unique, being the only lawyer in Boston at that time. He was a gentleman of very good education and styled himself "Thomas Lechford, Gentleman of Clement's Inn, London." According to the memorial history of Boston, Lechford came to New England in 1637. He brought with him a knowledge of his profession but both doctrinally and professionally he was regarded with suspicion. At that time a prisoner or suitor might plead his own cause or a friend might appear in his defence, but not for a fee. Lechford for going before the jury and pleading with them out of court was debarred from pleading any man's cause hereafter. He afterwards tried to maintain himself as a scrivener and obtained a little employment from the magistrates. He is the author of "Lechford's Note Book," a book rich in clues to the English homes of many Boston settlers. He also wrote "Plain Dealing in New England" and first instituted the recording of all wills and deeds, which was done at that time in Holland, but deeds were not recorded in England. For this we owe him a debt of gratitude. In 164— he returned to England and soon after died there.

Samuel Wilbore not only owned land in Portsmouth and in and around Boston but he also had holdings in Taunton or what is now East Taunton where he had a dwelling house spoken of in his will. This farm he gave to his son Shadrach and is now known as the old "Shadrach Wilbor Place." It is situated on Caswell Street and on the right hand side of the street going from Taunton Centre and some distance north of the junction of Caswell and Staples Streets. It is near what is called Bare Kneed brook and at that time the place was bounded by same. This place was owned in 1895 by Benjamin Caswell (see map of the town of that date). The old Wilbore house has long since disappeared and a new house nearer the road has taken its place. The foundations of an older house are quite a ways back of the newer one and may have been the foundations of the original house. Samuel, grandson of Shadrach, married Damaris Caswell and had a son Samuel, born in 1724. This son never married and in his will in 1774, June 20, and proved July 25 of the same year, left the above place to the Caswells in which family it has been held down to very recent times.

At the junction of Caswell and Staples Streets is an old Wilbore cemetery but on the other side of the road from the Wilbore place. Doubtless the Wilbores at one time owned on both sides of the street. The oldest stones are those of Samuel Wilbore who died in 1773 and his wife Damaris Caswell.

This Wilbore farm in Taunton was first the property of Edward Case and called Edward Case's Bare Kneed Farm. It was afterwards bought by Samuel Wilbore and also his house lot in Taunton Centre. At Samuel's death it went to his son Shadrach. In 1689 the town of Taunton gave to Shadrach Wilbore town clerk, "land at Cotley in Taunton." This piece of land adjoined the Wilbore farm where he was then living. Cotley was the name given to a small part of Taunton where the Wilbore farm was situated.

It is known that Samuel as well as being a merchant was interested also in the Braintree Iron Works Company but although it has been said that he was at the head of the company, the records of the company do not substantiate it, for it is shown that he was simply a stockholder in the concern when it had moved to Taunton.

The first iron works in Massachusetts were on the Monantiquet River in 1643, under an English company, under the influence of John Winthropp, son of the Governor with English capital from London of one thousand pounds. An enterprise was later started at Lynn or Saugus as it was then called, by the same company. After spending several years and ten thousand pounds capital the company partially suspended operations in 1653. Ore had been discovered in the flats bordering the two-mile river and other localities in Taunton. It was learned that Henry and James Leonard, skilled iron workers from Wales, who had been employed several years at Braintree and Lynn might be induced to come to Taunton. The works were then started there in 1652, October 21. The town granted the right to Henry and James Leonard and their brother-in-law, Ralph Russel, to set up a bloomery on the two-mile river and that any of the inhabitants of the town might form a company with them.

The company was then organized in 1653-4, money being scarce, iron was used as a medium of exchange.

According to the writer of the history of Taunton he had in his possession a piece of paper containing the following: "Captain Leonard, pay to John Witherel 9s. and 6d. and set it to my account. Samuel Wilbore." This was found among the papers of the iron company.

The list of the Braintree ironworks of the Beex Company as it was called are given below:

Lionel Copely, of Yorkshire.

Nicholas Bond of Westminster, England.

John Beex, merchant of London, England.

William Beauchamp, merchant of London, England.

Thomas Foley, gentleman of London, England.

William Greenhill, of Stepney, Co. Middlessex.

Thomas Weld, minister of Gateshead, Co. Durham.

John Pecock, merchant tailor of London.

William Beex, merchant taylor of London.

William Hicock, citizen of London.

Mr. Winthropp, Jr.

Henry Webb and others in America were added.

As Samuel had one of the Scotsmen of this Beex Company it would seem that he was also a member. The above members appear to be of about the same class of people that Samuel belonged to, namely merchants of some property. Copely is a well known name of a prominent family in Yorkshire as well as Wilbore. If Samuel did come from that county it is the only indication that I have found so far.

A later list has been found which gave all of the members of the Taunton Iron Works Company. This list gave the name of Samuel Wilbore and twenty-two others. These iron works are now called the old Bloomerie and the ruins of them are not far from the old Wilbore farm in Taunton.

There is only one deed recorded in Boston signed by Samuel, this deed is the sale of his house on Milk Street, spoken of before in this article. It is uncertain when this sale of land was made. The Reynolds genealogy says in 1653. It was recorded May 11, 1658.

The following is a brief of the deed and can be seen in the court house in Boston:

"Samuel Wilbore of Boston merchant and Elizabeth his wife for 20 and 5 pounds paid by Richard Sherman of Boston, planter and Elizabeth his wife, sell to them, all that easterly part of the house and lean-to and half the entry and half the chimney as it is now divided and the whole of the barne and all the land where on they stand situate and being on the south side of the street and leading from the corner of the house of Robert Reynolds, shoemaker, in Boston aforesaid, down to ye marsh. The said lands containing on the front streetward, two rods and a half in breadth at the southerly end and by and betwixt the lands of John Shaw westerly and lands of Thos. Spaule easterly, etc. And one other parcel of land lying at the southerly end of said premises, containing tenn rodds in length, be it more or less and four rodds and a half in breadth more or less between the lands of Mr. Michael Powell on the west side and the lands of Thos. Spaule on the east side, etc.

"To be holden in full and common soccage and not in capite or knights fee services."

SAMUEL WILBOARE.
ELIZABETH WILBOARE.

Witnesses,
Jno. Cheekely.
Angell Holland.
Nath. Souther.

It is probable that the third sale of land was made after Samuel's return to Boston as his wife Elizabeth, signs the deed, and it was after his marriage to Elizabeth Lechford.

It is not known when Samuel bought this land but it is likely that he lived here toward the latter part of his life. Milk Street was at that time the headquarters of most of the merchants of Boston. The merchant would have his shop on the first floor of his house and live on the second floor directly over it. This house was more centrally located than his house at the Roxbury line. This house of Samuel's was on the south side of the street which led from Washington Street, as it now does, to the Marsh. On the corner of Milk and Washington Streets was Robert Reynolds, shoemaker. Directly across Milk Street, where the old South Church now stands, was the home of Governor Winthropp. Next to Robert Reynold's toward the Marsh was the home of the parents of Benjamin Franklin. A little farther on, on Milk Street, was the house of Nathaniel Bishop, brother of Elizabeth Lechford's third husband. Here was Bishop's Alley, now called Hawley Street. Samuel lived farther on down the street near the Marsh which in those days was not far distant.

It is rather singular that in both sales of land that Samuel sold to the Shermans. To Richard his house on Milk Street and to Samuel Sherman his house at the Roxbury line. It might indicate that there was some family connection between the Wilbore and Sherman families in England. Then too, Phillip Sherman was one of the first settlers at Portsmouth. All of these Shermans were nearly related and the Sherman book gives their English line very minutely. Phillippa was the mother of Phillip Sherman, and Thomas Wilbore of Clavering had a daughter named Phillippa.

It will be noticed that Samuel did not own all of the above property. Only half of it "as it is now divided." It is not known who the other owner was, possibly Richard Sherman.

It was this Richard Sherman's wife who caused such an uproar in Boston, about her pig.

"There fell out," says Winthropp, "a great business upon a very small occasion. A. D. 1636 there was a stray sow in Boston, which was brought to Captain Keene. He had it cried divers times and divers people came to see it, but none made claim to it for near a year. He kept it in his yard with a sow of his own. Afterwards one Sherman's wife having lost such a sow, laid claim to it." And so the story is pursued for many pages. This stray sow in the streets of Boston, is hardly less historical than the white sow which guided Aenas to the future site of Rome. It led to a great dispute between the magistrates and deputies in regard to the "negative voice" and to the final separation by solemn order, of the legislature of Massachusetts into two coordinate branches, magistrates and deputies or as they are now called, senators and representatives.

Samuel Wilbore died at Boston, on the 29th of the seventh month, 1656, as is shown by the records of deaths of that city. We do not know where he was buried, but at that time the Kings Chapel burying ground and no other was in use. This is situated next to Kings Chapel on Tremont Street.

Samuel had lived during the reigns of four different rulers in England and in stirring times. Being born in the latter part of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, in whose reign occurred the death of Mary Queen of Scots, on the scaffold, the episode of the Spanish Armada, and a period called the most glorious in English history, and when lived such men as Shakespeare, Bacon, Spencer, Ben Jonson, Marlowe, Hooker, Raleigh and Sidney. Her reign came to an end in 1603 when Samuel was probably just out of his teens or around there, for the date of his birth has never been found, but it is estimated that he was born about 1580 to 1585 and all of the ages given here are based on this calculation and not from any certain knowledge.

At Elizabeth's death, James the First, the son of her dreaded rival Mary Stuart, Queen of Scots, took her place on the throne of England. It was in his reign that a company was formed for the settlement of Virginia in the year 1606, called the Virginia Company. James' translation of the Bible; the discovery of the gun powder plot to blow up Parliament and the colonization of America were the outstanding events of this reign.

In 1606 a group of Puritans formed a congregation at Scrooby in Notts and were so harrassed by officers of the law that most of them fled to Leyden in Holland in 1609. Many of these afterwards sailed for New England in the Mayflower and landed at Plymouth in 1620. Samuel must have been at this time about thirty-five years of age.

The reign of King James came to an end in 1625, when his son Charles the First, assumed power. This was a very troubled reign and when Puritan discontent was at its height and emigration started in much greater numbers. In 1629 the settlement was made at Salem and two years later another settlement at Boston. It was probably about this time that Samuel was making up his mind to emigrate from England. He would have been forty-five years of age or over and well towards middle age. Three years later we find him in Boston. It was about five years after this that the revolt against the King grew and Jenny Geddes in Edinburgh threw her stool at the Bishop.

In 1640 the famous long parliament was formed in England which ruled England for a dozen years and which sent Laud the archibishop of Canterbury to the Tower. He had long hounded and driven from the country the Puritans for their religion. In 1642 occurred the Civil War between the King, his cavaliers and the Scotch (of whom John Mockliet the Scotsman, mentioned in Samuel's will was one) on the one side and the middle classes and Puritans, called the Round Heads and Parliament on the other. It was in this conflict that occurred the "Fatal Field of Worcester" spoken of by Savage and given later in this article, when so many Scotchmen were captured and sent to America to a life little better than that of slaves. It was during this Civil War that Oliver Cromwell became prominent and it all ended in the victory of Parliament and the Puritans and the eventual execution of the King on the scaffold, on January 30, 1649.

Samuel at this time was in Boston having returned there from Portsmouth, about four years before. During his life three women were publicly executed on the common for Witch Craft and it is probable that he witnessed these executions. Margaret Jones was executed in 1648, Mary Parsons in 1651 and Ann Hibbins, the sister of Governor Bellingham in 1656.

After the execution of the King, England was declared a commonwealth, but soon came under the domination of Oliver Cromwell the Lord Protector in the year 1653.

On the 29th of the seventh month, 1656, and the third year of Cromwell's rule, Samuel died in Boston.

His will was proved November 6, 1656.

The will was probated in both Boston and Plymouth as he had property in both jurisdictions. The original will cannot be found in Boston but a copy of it and the inventory are recorded at Plymouth.

SAMUEL WILBORE'S WILL

A copy of a will appointed to be recorded, the thirtieth day of April in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred fifty-six:

I, Samuel Wilbore of Taunton in Plymouth Patent, being of perfect understanding, blessed be God, do make this my last will and testament as followeth:

I give and bequeath unto my loving wife Elizabeth, all the movable goods that is or shall be in my house in Boston where at present I do habit at the time of my decease and also all sheep and lambs at Dorchester there kept to halves, also a mare and colt at John Moore's at Braintree.

Item: I give and bequeath unto Samuel Wilbore, my eldest son, all my lands at Rhode Island and all my debts due to me there, first, from Richard Smith, the eldest, and also a debt from Henry Bull, which is four pounds, and an ewe of two years old; also, one cow in the hands of John Babcocke and also, one cow that is at Bridgewater together with the rent for the said cattle according to agreement and also six hundred of iron lying at Taunton in my dwelling house there.

Item: I give and bequeath unto my son Joseph Wilbore, my house and land wherein my said son Joseph Wilbore doth now inhabit and dwell with all appurtenances thereunto belonging and also twelve acres of ground granted by the Town of Taunton, being by the Iron Mills, and also my share in said Iron Works; and I give and bequeath unto my youngest son, Shadrach Wilbore my house and land thereunto belonging at Taunton wherein I dwell, with all movable goods within and without doors, and cattle, excepting half the orchard and half the said dwelling house and two of the best cows and hay to be taken off the meadow ground convenient for their wintering which I give and bequeath unto my said wife Elizabeth, provided, she continue and dwell there; but in case, my said wife should marry another man and inhabit elsewhere, that my son shall have the said annuity, allowing my said wife or her assigns the sum of ten pounds to be paid in such goods as the country doth afford.

Item: I give unto my said son Shadrach, the debts of James Jans Lynard, Ralph Rusill and Jeremy Newland; and I, the said Samuel Wilbore do nominate and appoint by said wife Elizabeth and my said son Shadrach Executors of this my last will and testament unto whom I give and bequeath all my other debts owing unto myself, not before specified paying all such debts as are owing by me, and discharging my funerals and performing the trust committed unto them which I hope they will do and I give my white horse unto my son Shadrach and what other cattle or goods I have not disposed of, I will, that my said executors have them betwixt them equally to be divided.

Item: I give to Robert Blott of Boston, twenty shillings.

Item: I give to Goodman Blacke, twenty shillings.

Item: I give to my son Shadrach, the time of the service of my man, John Nockelett, a Scotsman.

Item: I give unto my son Joseph a piece of blue tracking cloth of eight or ten yards which said cloth is included among the goods in the house at Boston, where at present I do inhabit and above bequeath to my said wife, and I will that my said executors pay to my son Joseph within two years after my decease, the sum of ten pounds in iron, viz; one five pounds thereof at six months end and the other five pounds at the two years end. Unto which, my last will and testament, I have hereunto set my hand and seal, the day and year above said.

On December 20th of the same year, Elizabeth the wife of Samuel married for her third and last husband Henry Bishop. The record is given as follows:

Henry Bishop and Elizabeth Wilbore, widow, were married December 20, 1656, by Richard Bellingham, deputy governor.

Henry Bishop was the brother of Nathaniel Bishop before mentioned and also of Governor James Bishop of New Haven, Conn. He also at one time lived at New Haven but after his marriage to Elizabeth Wilbore became a citizen of Boston. Records show that he was engaged in making and receiving shipments of merchandise with the Barbadoes and had an account with Henry Glover of New Haven. He died May 11, 1664, and his wife died the same year.

The above will gives us some very interesting facts. His homestead farm in Taunton, Samuel gave to his son Shadrach, a description of which has been given.

Samuel also gives to Goodman Fflacke, sometimes miscalled Black, and Robert Blott of Boston, certain legacies. It is possible that these two men were related to Samuel in some way. Cotton Fflacke was living in Boston at this time and his house and garden stood where the hotel Touraine now stands, on Boylston Street. There are many Fflacks in the vicinity of Cambridge, England.

Samuel also mentions his man John Mockliet, a Scotsman. Savage mentions this John Mockliet in his note on Wilbore and says, "Perhaps meant for Mchule or Mcloud, one of the wretched victims of the Civil War, either of that importation of 1652 of which large account is seen in the genealogical register of the first year, showing the names of most of a shipload of two hundred and seventy-two, sold from the shambles the year preceding, being the year after the fatal field of Worcester, though it may have been his fortune to experience the tender mercies of Cromwell after his victory the preceding year. Whether the Dunbar invoice contained the names of as many young men as the Worcester is unknown, but it is an object of high interest to find that one out of a hundred out lived by four or five years, their civil banishment and servitude."

These Scotchmen, mentioned by Savage, were sold to the Beex Company otherwise called the Braintree Ironworks Company who had them for iron workers. Samuel being a member of this company, one of them was sold to him. But recent investigation has proven that many descendants of these Scotchmen are living today.

It is evident from the preceeding notes that Samuel Wilbore was above the ordinary, in social position, wealth, education and family.

We know that his social position was good not only at Portsmouth but also at Boston. We have seen that not only was he addressed by the title of Mr. at Portsmouth but also thus addressed in Boston by both Governors Dudley and Winthropp. According to Mr. Howard Chapin, in his article, "When Mr. Meant Much," the title Mr. meant a great deal more than it does today. At that time there were many grades of society and the title Mr. was applied to only a few persons of unquestionable eminence. All ministers and their wives took the title and the higher magistrates but it was not given to deputies in the general court as such. The great body of respectable citizens were dubbed Goodman and Good wife. Below the grade of Goodman were still the servants who had no prefix to their names.

Samuel's marriage to Elizabeth, widow of Thomas Lechford, is another indication of his good social standing in the community, for people then very rarely married out of their class. The colonies were not a democracy. Social lines were very tightly drawn.

Even in apparel, people had to dress according to their rank for the history of Boston says that "It is very evident that from the terms of legislation that the government was solicitious to preserve the distinctions of social rank and check that equality of dress among different grades of society. The court in 1651, when limiting the use of gold and silver lace it showed its utter detestation and dislike that men and women of mean degree should take upon themselves the garb of gentlemen, by wearing gold or silver lace or buttons or points at their knees or to walk in great boots, though allowable to persons of greater estates of more liberal education, yet we cannot but judge it intolerable in person of like condition."

Nathaniel Ward of Boston, living at this time writes the following as to woman's dress in 1645.

"It is known more than enough that I am neither niggard nor cynic to the due bravery of the true gentry. I honor the woman that can honor herself with her attire. A good text always deserves a fair margent. I am not much offended if I see a trim far trimmer than she that wears it. In a word I can afford with London measure. But when I hear a nuguperous gentle dame inquire what dress the queen wore this week. What the fashion of the court, I mean the very newest, with egge to be on it, I look at her as the very gizzard of a trifle, the product of a quarter of cypher, the epitome of nothing, fitter to be kicked, if she were of kickable substance, than either honored or humored. To speak moderately (a delicious reserve) I truly confess it is beyond the ken of my understanding to conceive how those women should have any true grace or valuable virtue that have so little wit as to disfigure themselves with such exotic garbs as not only dismantles their native lovely lustre, but transculots them into gaunt geese, ill shapen, shotten shell fish, Egyptian hyrogliffics or at the best into French Flirts of the pastry, which a proper English woman would scorn with her heels. It is no marvel that they wear drails on the hinder parts of their heads, having nothing it seems, in the forepart but a few squirrels brains to help them to frisk from one ill favored fashion to another. We have about six of them in our colony. If I see any one of them accidentally, I cannot cleanse my fancy of them for a month."

It is also true that Samuel had plenty of means and must have been in good financial condition before leaving England, to judge by his gift to the first free school in America. Even Winthropp gave no more than he. He also had much property in many places, including Boston, Brookline, Chelsea, Braintree, Portsmouth and Taunton.

He was also of good education, which was not so common in those days, having many books in his inventory, and being several times clerk in Portsmouth. He was also a very fair penman as is shown by his signature.

The Reynolds book, written about Robert Reynolds of Boston, has the following passage:

- "All the houses are made of thin small cedar shingles nailed against frames and then filled in with brick and other stuff; and so are their churches." (by Wilbore).

The above was given as a description of Boston in 1638 and signed by Wilbore. As there was no other Wilbore in Boston at the time it must have been our ancestor. Where this description was copied from is a mystery not yet solved. If this description is of any length it would be interesting indeed to find it. The author thinks that it was copied from a history of Boston but I have not been able to find it.

As to his occupation, it is clearly shown that Samuel was a merchant, and probably of cloth, as his inventory mentions a great deal of that material, and also mentions a piece of blue trucking cloth in the house at Boston. He also sold lumber. He evidently plied back and forth by water between Boston and Portsmouth, as he is given permission to land his goods at a certain place in Portsmouth according to the records of that place. Winthropp's letter shows his occupation and so does the deed of sale of the property in Boston. John Coggeshall mentioned in this same letter was a silk merchant. About this class of merchants to which Wilbore belonged Mr. George Andrews Moriarty has the following to say:

'There were merchants, most of them well to do, from London and the larger towns and who came in considerable numbers. They were persons of importance, and among them were many cadets of the gentry. Many sons of the country squires were to be found in the ranks of clothiers and merchants. The yeoman and clothiers at this time were living in a luxury and ease unknown to their progenitors."

There are faint indications that Samuel may have been connected with the Shermans. The Shermans were in the cloth business both in London and Dedham, England.

Samuel Wilbore's ancestry has never been traced, and we have not been able even to find out from what town in England he came.

James Savage in his ancestral dictionary says:

"Samuel Wildbore with wife Ann, who was daughter of Thomas Bradford of Doncaster, in the southern part of Yorkshire, as in his will of March 1, 1607, is shown, was admitted to the first church December 1, 1633, and had no doubt brought with him, children, Samuel, Joseph and Shadrach from England and had probably no children born on this side of the water unless we see cause to give him William."

Austin, in his genealogical dictionary of Rhode Island says:

"His first wife has been called daughter of Thomas Bradford of Doncaster, Co. York, but if the latters will was dated March 1, 1607, and mentions a daughter Ann, wife of Samuel Wildbore, that Samuel could hardly be this one."

Mr. Austin was right, for during my trip to England in 1923-4, I examined this will at the city of York and found that it gave the following: "To my daughter, Ann Wildbore, wife of Zacharias Wildbore." The will shows that Thomas Bradford's daughter Ann did not marry Samuel Wilbore but married Zacharias or Zachary Wildbore of Doncaster, and that Ann wife of our Samuel was another person entirely.

A very small part of the above will was printed in this country and given in a collection of Bradford wills published in the collections of the Massachusetts Historical Society. This collection of Bradford wills was made by Joseph Hunter, the Historian of Yorkshire and mentioned Ann the daughter of Thomas Bradford, but did not give the name of her husband. This was very unfortunate for some one over here jumped to the conclusion that she was our Ann, and that as Ann came from Doncaster, Samuel must have also. Who Ann, the wife of Samuel Wilbore, was and what her last name might have been has not been discovered. There were many Wilbores in Doncaster at that time and in the adjoining parish of Arksey it is true, as well as in many other parts of England. Evidently this false clue of the Bradford will is the one which started the tradition that the American Wilbor family came from Doncaster. We have no clue that points definitely to any special town but it would be more likely that Samuel would come from Essex, or perhaps Suffolk or Herts, but not as far north as Yorkshire as there was very little immigration from that county.

The B. F. W. notes now contain a collection of practically five hundred or more names of Wilbores in different parts of England. They are practically all in the eastern part of England. They are most plentiful in the order named, Yorkshire, Lincolnshire, Nottinghamshire and Essex. There are also many Wilbores in Kent, Suffolk, Cambridgeshire, Hunts, Leicestershire, Rutlandshire, Worcestershire, Middlessex, Hertfordshire, and Glocestershire. This all applies to the seventeenth century. There were a few very early in the fourteen hundreds in Lancashire. Of the five hundred names that we have in our possession of English Wilbores, there are only seven Samuels.

Samuel, son of Richard, was mentioned in his father's will in 1557, but this is too early for our Samuel. This Richard[4] was son of John[3], Thomas[2], William[1], and was of Bently in the Parish of Arksey.

Samuel[2], son of Thomas[3], William[1], of Arksey, died of the plague in 1591 and left four daughters who survived him to inherit his estate. This Samuel also had a son Samuel, baptized in Arksey in 1572, who died in 1574.

Samuel, son of Nicholas, was baptized at Arksey in January, 1579.

This Nicholas appears to have moved to the Parish of Laughton in Southern Yorkshire near the Notts line. He had sons Gervaise, Thomas, Robert and Samuel baptized at Arksey and these same names appear later at Laughton. Gervaise, Thomas, a brother John, and their brother Samuel are buried at Laughton, Samuel being buried May 22, 1580, at Laughton and I infer this to be the one who was also son of Nicholas baptized at Arksey January 31, 1579.

Samuel, son of Zachary Wilbore, was baptized at Arksey, January, 1607, but this would be too late for our Samuel. This Zachary is probably the one who married Ann Bradford.

Thomas[4] Wilbore, son of Michael[2], Thomas[3], William[1], of Arksey and Clavering Essex had at the latter place a son Samuel[5], who died young in 1650. He also had sons, Henry and Mathew and a daughter Phillippa.

All of the above Samuels are of the Doncaster line or their descendants in Essex. The name Samuel rarely occurs anywhere else in England as far as we know.

There was Samuel Wildbore who married Ann Hardmeat which is perhaps a misspelling of Hardmette. They were married at St. Mary's, Nottingham, June 18, 1689. This would of course be too late for our Samuel.

The Samuel whom we have come across most recently is the one mentioned in the will of Elizabeth Wilbore of Sible Hedingham. Her will dated 1624, and calling the town Hedingham Sible, names sons Robert, Edmaund, John and Samuel Wilbore, also son-in-law John Wittam and her daughter the wife of John Wittam. John Harrington, son of my son John Harrington. Son-in-law Francis Whiston, and Francis Walton, my brother-in-law. This might be our Samuel but the names given in this family are not the ones used by the American family.

The names used by the Wilbore family in America more closely resemble those used by the Clavering branch of the family than any other family in England discovered so far.

Thomas Wilbore or later Welbore of Clavering had sons Mathew and Samuel and a nephew William. Samuel the emigrant to America had sons Samuel and a nephew William and a Mathew Wilbore was with them here in America. These names seem to be common both in America and Clavering.

Thomas of Clavering had also cousins who settled in America, for Ann Bell his cousin, was the third wife of Sir Fernando Gorges, the proprietor of Maine and Thomas Bradbury another cousin of Thomas Wilbore of Clavering was also settled here and connected in a business way with Gorges, as he was also a relative of Gorges wife.

The Browning genealogy states that Samuel Wilbore was born in Ipswich, County Suffolk, England. It does not however give any evidence as to the truth of this statement. It is quite likely that Samuel sailed from Ipswich, as it is one of the Cinque ports from which the Puritans sailed. The Hutchinsons and Shermans were both quite familiar with Ipswich, and branches of both families were living there.

Let us hope that future research will reveal something more definite as to the ancestry of Samuel Wilbore, but it is a very slow and expensive search and not one family in forty in America today know where their ancestor came from in England.

William Wilbor[2]

By Benjamin F. Wilbour

The descendants of the family of Samuel Wilbore, the first of the name in America may be divided into two groups, namely, descendants of his son Shadrach Wilbore of Taunton, whose descendants are mainly in Massachusetts and William Wilbore, of Portsmouth, whose descendants settled mainly in Rhode Island and scattered throughout Connecticut and New York State before 1800.

The Little Compton, R. I., branch are all descended from William of Portsmouth. To the present time it has not been possible to ascertain the exact parentage of William but we do know that he was a near relative of Samuel, Sr., being either a grandson or nephew, for Captain Samuel[2] Wilbore, Jr., son of Samuel, in his will dated August 21, 1678, makes the following statement. "I do freely give and bequeath unto my cousin, William Wilbore senior, 250 acres of land in the Narragansett Country to him and his heirs forever."

Later on in the same will the following statement occurs: "I do will that my son-in-law Lieut. Latham Clarke and my cousin, William Wilbore, Sr., shall take care of my deeds in the Narragansett Country and see to recording them and to act with my partners as though I were personally present, in behalf of my executrix."

The above clearly proves that although William was not Samuel's son, he was nearly related to him.

"Cousin" at that time was sometimes used as we now use it and at other times it was used for niece or nephew and other relationships and simply meant kinsman or relative.

The biography of Governor Isaac[6] Wilbor, Charles[5], William[4], Samuel[3], William[2], Samuel[1], states that William was a grandson of Samuel. This is entirely possible, as far as his age is concerned, as he was born in 1630 and Samuel may have had an elder son who did not come to this country or returned to England early, who could have been the father of William, but considering his age and the ages of the sons of Samuel, it is more likely that he was of the same generation and a cousin of Samuel[2], Jr., as the word is used at the present time.

There was a Mathew Wilbore, very recently discovered, who signed the deed of the Pettiquamscutt Purchase in 1660 with William Wilbore as witnesses. One of the purchasers being Samuel, Jr. This Mathew may have been the missing father of William and brother of Samuel, Sr., for he must have belonged to the family group. Mathew's name is recorded no where else in this country as far as we know and probably either died soon after or more likely returned to England. Neither Austin, Savage or any other genealogical authority has ever mentioned him.

William Wilbore of Portsmouth was a weaver of cloth which helps to support my contention that the Wilbores were cloth merchants. It was he who paid the five and forty shillings for Shadrach[2] Wilbore at the time of his imprisonment by Andros at Bristol. He seems to have been in better circumstances than Shadrach as is shown by the inventories.

Practically all of William's life after his marriage was spent in Portsmouth, R. I., as was that of Samuel, Jr., having settled there when Samuel, Sr., and his fellow Colonists settled the Island of Aquidneck, now known as the Island of Rhode Island, in 1638.

On the tenth of July, 1654, Samuel Wilbore, Sr., sold to William Wilbore, of Portsmouth, as follows:

"Be it known unto all men, by these greetings that I Samuel Wilbore, Senior, residing at Taunton, in Plymouth Patent, for good cause and considerable value received in hand, I have sold unto William Wilbore . . . . at Portsmouth on Rhode Island a parcel of land in said Portsmouth that I, ye said Samuel Wilbore bought of one good man Ermine (Thos. Emmons) being in ye swamp below John Tripp's land . . . . that I have sold unto ye said William Wilbore granting unto ye aforesaid William Wilbore ten acres of land be it more or less, with all the profits thereunto belonging . . . .

"In witness whereof, I have herewith set my hand and seal this tenth day of July, 1654.

SAMUEL WILBORE.

Witnesses:
John Room.
John Briggs.

On December 10, 1657, William Wilbore was granted ten acres of land by the town of Portsmouth.

On December 20, 1658, William Wilbore sold to Peter Tallman, of Newport, six acres of land in Portsmouth, bounded East by land of said Peter, which land was sold to him by Capt. Richard Morris, South by Captain Morris' land he bought of Goodman Emmons, West by a highway that goeth to the water. This land was sold later to Joan Briggs of Taunton by Peter Tallman. Peter Tallman's homestead farm was the farm that you face as you leave the stone bridge in going from Taunton to Portsmouth.

In the year 1660 William Wilbor and Mathew Wilbore sign as witnesses to the deed of the Pettiquamscutt Purchase or land twelve miles square which the town South Kingston now largely consists of. This land was bought by Samuel[2] Wilbore, Jr., and his partners John Hull of Boston, goldsmith; John Porter, Samuel Wilson and Thomas Mumford.

On October 13, 1665, William Wilbore was a juryman in Portsmouth.

June 1, 1668, he was appointed constable.

March 17, 1669, grand juryman.

On April 25, 1672, he was appointed a member of the general court.

November 28, 1673, his son, John, was admitted a freeman of Portsmouth.

June 1, 1674, he was again appointed constable and on June 5, 1676, he was again appointed to the same office.

On June 4, 1677, his son William was admitted a freeman of Portsmouth.

On April 23, 1678, he was deputy to the general assembly of the several towns of Warwick, Portsmouth, Newport and Providence Plantations.

On September 12, 1680, he was tax collector.

He served on the grand inquest in 1682, 1684, 1685 and 1686.

On April 20, 1687, he sold eight acres of land to Eber Sherman, bounded East on a highway, South on land which belonged to Philip Sherman, West and North on the common.

In 1691 he was again a member of the grand inquest and on May 18th of the same year a division of land was made by John Smith of Taunton and William Wilbore of Portsmouth of property owned jointly by them. The 16th lot of the first division was allotted to Wilbore, and May 21, 1691, he transferred "all my lands in Swansea" to son Daniel.

On December 30, 1691, he made over to son Samuel Wilbore of Little Compton one-half of a fifty acre lot which was afterwards the beginning of Samuel's farm and is now the Oliver H. Wilbor place in that town.

In the year 1692 he was again a member of the grand inquest.

On May 5, 1693-4 the town of Portsmouth made an allotment of twelve acres of land for four and twenty shillings to William Wilbore of Portsmouth and bounded as follows: West by own land and part on John Wilbor, North on land laid out to John[3] Wilbor (Samuel[2], Samuel[1]), East on common and Southerly on Caleb Arnold. This land was afterwards sold by William's son Benjamin to William Burrington in 1719 and is now part of the Burrington Anthony farm so called, which is bounded East by the main road leading to Bristol ferry and South by Freeborne Street. It was probably on this farm that William had his house, for the land in the above deed mentioned as the Western boundary, as "own land," was called William Wilbore's garden.

Most of the land owned by William Wilbore, his son Benjamin, Samuel, Jr., his "Widow" Hannah and their son John Wilbore was part of the Burrington Anthony farm or adjoining to it, and was East of the Ferry Road as may be seen by the ancient map of the town at the town clerk's office.

In 1694 he is again a member of the assembly at Newport.

In 1696 William Wilbore of Portsmouth bought of Thomas Burgess land in Little Compton formerly owned by Thomas Pope. This may have been part of the present John F. Pierce farm and next to the farm of Captain Church the Indian fighter.

On March 30, 1697, he bought of William Palmer land at Coaksett (Westport) one-half of a meadow lot No. 13, and on December 5, 1701, William Dye sold to William Wilbore of Portsmouth Lot No. 14 of the home lots in Little Compton. On the same day William deeded to son Joseph the above lot of land and two others which were the beginning of Joseph's farm in Little Compton.

On February 23, 1704, William Wilbore of Portsmouth deeded to son Benjamin "all my now dwelling house, orchard, and all and every piece of land which I own in Portsmouth."

On August 7, 1705, he deeded to grandson Samuel, son of Thomas Wilbore 250 acres of land in Kingstown which was part of the Pettiquamscutt or Narragansett purchase.

On September 3, 1706, he bought of William Palmer land in Little Compton. One 24-acre lot the 29th in number bounded East by the highway, South by Josiah Cook and West on the 30-acre lot.

In 1709, April 25, William Wilbore still of Portsmouth bought of Mathew Howard of Tiverton 300 acres of land in Tiverton bounded South by Arnold Collins, West by —— Pond and East by Dartsmouth line. Also lots No. 8 and 40 in the second division.

It is evident from the above that William Wilbore was a large land owner in the Towns of Portsmouth, Tiverton, Little Compton, Swansea and Westport, and many of these lands he held until his death.

We have seen that in 1704 he transferred all of his lands in Portsmouth to son Benjamin.

Benjamin held this land until 1714 as is shown by the map of that date. All of this land is bounded East by the road which leads to Bristol Ferry at the North and near the present Portsmouth railroad station.

On December 1, 1719, Benjamin Wilbore of Portsmouth with wife Elizabeth, for 747 pounds sold a parcel of land 44 acres in all to Joseph Brownell bounded South by Joseph Brownell, West by Widow Hannah Wilbore, North by same and East by land of William Burrington, sold to him by me and by the highway.

On December 2, 1719, he sold to John Burrington one messuage and 20½ acres of land for 205 pounds. Bounded South by Hannah Wilbore, West by same North by Thomas Borden and East by highway that extends to Bristol Ferry.

On the same day he sold to William Burrington, Jr., one messuage and 41½ acres of land. Bounded South by William Burrington, West by land sold by me to Joseph Brownell, North by land of Hannah Wilbore and East by highway. This was part of his father's homestead.

On December 24, 1720, Benjamin Wilbore and wife, Elizabeth, now of Dartsmouth, sold two small islands called Spectacle Islands to Daniel Howland. These islands are situated in Portsmouth Cove and were at one time owned by Samuel Wilbore, Jr.

August 4, 1709, paid William Wilbore for his services at Fort Ann (afterwards called Fort George of Newport, R. I.) 15 shillings.

William Wilbore died in 1710 according to tradition at Tiverton.

His will was made March 1, 1710, and proved August 15, 1710, and is recorded at Portsmouth, Book 2, Page 237, and is as follows:

In the Name of God, Amen, I, William Wilbor of the town of Portsmouth in the Colony of Rhode Island in Providence Plantations, in New England. Being sick in body and to mind the frailty of this life though being of sound mind and memory, Praise be given unto Almighty God, doe make and ordain this my last will and testament in manner and forme following:

That is to say; First and principally I commend my soul into the hands of Almighty God, hoping through the immortal death and passion of my Savior Jesus Christ to receive full Pardon and forgiveness of all my sins and to inherit everlasting life and my body I commit to the earth to be decently buried, at the discretion of my executors hereafter named, and as touching the disposition of all such temporal estate as it hath pleased Almighty God to bestow upon me, I give and dispose of as followeth:

First, I will that my just debts and funeral charges shall be paid and discharged.

Item: I will that my son John Wilbor's two children, John and Mary Records, shall have 30 pounds equally between them, which is due to me by bond from my said son John.

Item: I give to my son Daniel Wilbor all my land in the first division in Shawomoke, Great Neck, only preserving for my life what wood and timber that I may have occasion for.

Item: The forty-three pounds which my son Samuel Wilbor is indebted to me, I give and bequeath to be equally divided amongst his children.

Item: I will that the twenty-five pounds which my daughter Mary Mowry is indebted to me for, I give and bequeath to her grand children to be equally divided between them.

Item: I give and bequeath to my son Joseph Wilbor one hundred pounds in money.

Item: I give to my son John Wilbor twenty pounds in money.

Item: I give and bequeath to my son Benjamin Wilbor, the money which is my due by bond from Daniel Wilcox deceast.

Item: I give and bequeath to my daughter Martha Sherman ten pounds in money and I also give and bequeath to my daughter Joan ten pounds in money and a great C——chon.

Item: I give and bequeath to my four sons, John, William, Joseph and Samuel all my lands that I now have in the Township of Little Compton that is undisposed of, to be equally divided between them, by aforesaid four sons. And I further will that the rest of my estate, either in lands or bonds or any other estate that is not already disposed of, I give and bequeath to all my grandchildren to be divided equally between them, and ordain and make my loving son Joseph Wilbor, full and sole executor of this my last will and testament and my son John Wilbor and my son William Wilbor to be overseers of this my last will and testament. And I doe hereby revoke, disanull and make voyd all former wills and testaments by me heretofore made.

In witness whereof I the said William Wilbor to this my last will and testament have set my hand and seal, this first day of March, one thousand seven hundred and ten and the ninth year of the reign or our sovereign lady, Anne, the Queen of Great Britain.

Joseph Wilbore son and executor unto the above said Testator William Wilbore being engaged according to law, testifieth and saith, that the above written is a true inventory of all the personal or movable estate of his above Father, according to his best understanding. Taken before me the 15th of the 6th month August 1710.

Benjamin Hall, Justice.

The above is on a slip of paper in the scrap book at the Town Clerk's Office. There is also an original paper the estate of Edward Lay, signed by William.

According to the above will William (W) gave all of his land in Little Compton to his four sons, John, Joseph, William and Samuel. Joseph and Samuel and probably the other two were already residents of the town and settled on land given them by their father.

John settled in the East part of the town on what is called the long highway, Joseph on a farm just south of the commons, William in the southeastern part of the town near the south shore and Samuel in the southwestern part on the main west road. It is curious to note that the descendants of these four sons stayed on land in the vicinity of the farms of their ancestor, for many generations, for Joseph's descendants lived at the commons and Samuel's were scattered along the southern part of the west road, while the descendants of John and William remained in the eastern part of the town.

These four sons left numerous descendants and it has been said that at one time all of the voters in Little Compton, with the exception of two were named either Wilbor or Brownell. I cannot vouch for the accuracy of this statement but I do know that both of these families were very numerous, for in the census of 1850 one-tenth of the inhabitants were Wilbors and one-tenth Brownells or in other words one-fifth of the entire population of Little Compton in 1850 were Brownells and Wilbors.

On December 15, 1701, William Wilbore, of Portsmouth, transferred to his son Joseph, of Little Compton thirty acres of land in Little Compton or three ten-acre lots in the first division of house lots (see the old proprietors map), two of which belonged formerly to John Washbourn and were the eighth and eighteenth in number and a third lot which he bought of William Dye and the Wilbor place is today and it extended south to and including the eighteenth lot. In the southern part of this farm is the old "Commons" Wilbur cemetery, where Joseph and many of his descendants are buried. The following inscription is carved on his stone of slate: "In memory of Joseph Wilbore, son of William of Portsmouth who emigrated to Little Compton, R. I., in 1680 and died May 4, 1729, aged 73 years."

William Wilbore son of William of Portsmouth, settled on the farm near the south shore in Little Compton. This farm is now the residence of William N. Sisson and in 1870 was owned by Ephraim Sisson.

John Wilbore, son of William, of Portsmouth, probably settled on the farm east of the long highway that is now the property of Rudolphus Allen and in 1870 was owned by John Soule. John Wilbor's son John owned this place and in 1747 left it to his son Capt. Aaron Wilbur an officer of the Revolution. Aaron Wilbur's wife, Mary Church, is buried in the old cemetery on this farm where a slate stone marks her grave. The old Wilbur house was burned about fifteen years ago.

Samuel Wilbore, son of William, of Portsmouth, was born 1664 and settled on the farm which lately belonged to the late Oliver H. Wilbor and in 1870 was the property of William and Oliver H. Wilbor in District No. 2 and on the east side of the main west road. This farm is situated in what was called the third purchase or the three-quarters of a mile square which was purchased on July 6, 1681, from the Indian Queen, Awashonk.

William Wilbore, of Portsmouth, deeded to son Samuel Wilbore, of Little Compton, on December 30, 1691, one-half of a fifty-acre lot, formerly the property of John Washbourn and the fifteenth lot in number of the fifty-acre lots (see the proprietors map of Little Compton), bounded North by heirs of Thomas Ward, East by heirs of Daniel Hayward and West by lot formerly of Minister. This son Samuel soon bought the other half of this lot from the heirs of John Almy and later obtained Lots No. 16, 17 and 18 of the fifty-acre lots and possibly No. 14. Also eleven acre lots No. 1, 2, 3, 4, the last named being the ministry lot and possibly No. 5. All these lots made up the Samuel Wilbore farm which extended from the present or Abbott's place on the south to the present Solomon place on the north and was bounded by the main road on the west and extended nearly to the road south of the commons. This was a very large farm. The house on this farm is one of the oldest in town and must have been built by Samuel himself.

The following extract is taken from a letter written to me on September 28, 1927, by Mrs. Abbie H. (Manchester) Wilbor, widow of Oliver H. Wilbor, late owner of the farm.

"The age of the house is unknown. The southeast room is of the original house. It was for many years one living room, with the oak beams all around, the big corner posts and one large beam through the centre. The partition which now separates it from the bedroom was not there in Clark Wilbor's time (father of Oliver H.). There was a small porch on the east (L) with one window of diamond panes of glass, very old, moved off when the new porch was added. Upstairs the same big sized room with beams and which Clarke Wilbor used for his school room. It had a stone chimney. I suppose it was rebuilt when the west part of the house was added. As to the east room before it was remodelled, in any way, it is much like the east room at the Betty Alden House. Why is it not safe to say it was built about that time (1685) or before, as I think it was older than that, say between 1650-1675. The original part is I think, the oldest in town . . . .

All the papers I had I passed over to the Wilbor family. I had the first William Wilbor's will (William[4], Samuel[3], William[2], Samuel[1]) giving our farm the right to pass through your farm (Benjamin F. Wilbour place) to the shore to get seaweed as they have need."

Sincerely,

ABBIE H. WILBOR.

The difference in the windows on the back of this house show where the new part was added on.

This farm was passed on to the children of Herbert Wilbor, son of Alfred Goldsmith Wilbor, they being the eighth generation of Wilbor owners of this farm but it is now in other hands.

Samuel[3] Wilbor (William[2], Samuel[1]) in his will laid out the old Wilbur cemetery on this farm where generations of his descendants have been buried for almost 200 years. But there are very few marked stones here. Many of this branch of the family were Quakers. Doubtless this explains the lack of stones. Then many have been moved to other cemeteries where the graves would receive better care. Some were moved to the new Wilbor or Seaconnet Cemetery on the West Road. Among them were, Governor Isaac and wife Hannah Tabor, Philip Wilbor and wife Mercy Burgess and his sister Mary Wilbour, Benjamin F. Wilbour and his wife Abby M. Taylor and probably several others. The oldest stone in the old Wilbor cemetery is of Daniel Wilbour who married Deborah Taylor and died February 11, 1841.

Samuel[3] Wilbore (William[2], Samuel[1]) settled in Little Compton much earlier than 1700. In 1689 he married Mary Potter, daughter of Nathaniel and Elizabeth (Stokes) Potter. Her father's farm is the one a little west of Central Village up a lane to the south of the main road from Central Village to Adamville and has a large Brownell cemetery on it.

Samuel[3] Wilbore's will was probated at Taunton where the original may be seen today, for at this time Little Compton belonged to Massachusetts and all wills and deeds were registered at Taunton until 1747 when Little Compton became a part of Rhode Island with other towns along the eastern border of the State. His signature shows that he spelled his name Willbor.

William[4] Wilbore, son of Samuel[3], William[2], Samuel[1], was a doctor of medicine or Dr. of Physic, as they were then called. There were many of his descendants who also became Doctors of Medicine, among them, Thomas (W) of Hopkinton, R. I., who married Edith Woodman. Amos C. (W) of Fall River and William H. (W) of Westerly, R. I., who married Eliza Mann and their son John.

He was also quite an extensive land owner in Little Compton, owning three large farms and other land in this town. Besides owning his father's farm he also owned the farm he "bought of Jeremiah Shaw" and gave to his son Charles Wilbor, father of Governor Isaac which was also the Governor's birthplace. This place was owned in 1870 by Henry R. Butler and is now owned by the heirs of the late John A. Seabury.

The third farm was the one he bought of the grandchildren of Captain Benjamin Church in 1756 and left to his son Daniel. This is the present Benjamin F. Wilbour place.

William Wilbore was born January 6, 1695, in Little Compton, on his father's farm. On June 20, 1717, he married Esther Burgess, born 1696 at Little Compton, died 1760 at Little Compton, daughter of Thomas and Esther (Richmond) Burgess and granddaughter of Edward and Abigail (Davis) Richmond. She lived on her father's (Thomas Burgess) farm which is now the property of the heirs of John F. Pierce and the next place south of the Benjamin F. Wilbour homestead.

William Willbor's will is probated in Little Compton, Book 2, at Page 278. He spells his name Willbor.

Daniel[5] Willbor son of William[4], Samuel[3], William[2], Samuel[1], was born June 1, 1729, on the Oliver H. Wilbor place in Little Compton and died April, 1803. He inherited the farm which is now the Benjamin F. Wilbour place from his father who had bought it in 1756 from the grandchildren of Col. Benjamin Church the noted Indian fighter of King Philip's war and conqueror of King Philip. This farm was part of the second purchase of Little Compton then called Segonet, made by the Court of Plymouth through their representatives, William Pabodie, Constant Southworth and Nathaniel Thomas. This second purchase was made November 1, 1673, from three Indians named Mamanuah, Osemahen and Sucqua and divided in thirty-two fifty-acre lots. Two of these fifty-acre lots the first and second in number were alloted by the Plymouth Court to Col. Benjamin Church and is what is now known as the Benjamin F. Wilbour place. At that time the farm was bounded on the north by an Indian path called Toothos which separated it from Queen Awashonk's reservation of three-quarters of a mile square and which a little later was sold to William Pabodie who married Elizabeth, daughter of John Alden.

Col. Church settled on the two above mentioned fifty-acre lots about 1674 and the location of his house near the bay is marked by a bronze tablet.

Col. Church died in 1718 and the place then went to his son the Hon. Thomas Church, Esquire, who built the present Benjamin F. Wilbour house here in 1724.

Thomas Church was a man of wealth and had several slaves. It will be seen that although a persistent man he was not a superstitious one for his first son Thomas having died the next son was named Thomas and the latter having died the next son born was named Thomas. This third Thomas also died young and a fourth son being born he was also named Thomas who lived to a good old age.

In the old cemetery at the commons may be seen there three small tombs of the first three Thomas Churchs.

After the death of Col. Church's son Thomas his children sold the place to Dr. William[4] Wilbur (Samuel[3], William[2], Samuel[1]) who left it in 1774 to his son Daniel[5]. It has now been in the family for 173 years, or six generations of Wilbors have owned it.

Daniel[5] Wilbor, son of William[4], Samuel[3], William[2], Samuel[1], married March 22, 1753, Mary Southworth who was born December 30, 1728, at the old Southworth place in Little Compton on the south side of the Swamp Road and now owned by Franklin C. Southworth. She was the daughter of Capt. Joseph Southworth and wife May Blague, granddaughter of Capt. William Southworth and wife Rebecca Pabodie who was daughter of William Pabodie and wife Elizabeth Alden, daughter of John Alden and Priscilla Mullins of the Mayflower. Mary (Southworth) Wilbur died at Little Compton, April 18, 1799, aged 71 years.

Daniel[5] Wilbor was deputy to the general assembly in 1775-6-7 and 1783-4 which met in the old court house at Newport, R. I. As he was a member of the assembly during the Revolution, several of his descendants have joined the D. A. R. on his record. He was also a member of the town council and a desk which belonged to him is in my possession. He owned several farms on the west road. Namely the place now owned by Lester E. Wilbor and in 1870 by Ezra Wilbor. Also the place now owned by the heirs of the late Daniel Wilbour and also the Benjamin F. Wilbour place. He spelled his name Wilbur.

He made two wills, one was made November 2, 1796, and the original is in the hands of Mrs. Deborah C. Cushman of Fairhaven, Mass. After the death of his wife he made a second will dated January 21, 1800. This will is recorded in Little Compton Probate, Book 4, Page 113.

Daniel[6] Wilbour, son of Daniel[5], William[4], Samuel[3], William[2], Samuel[1], and Mary (Southworth) Wilbor, was born in Little Compton on his father's place, February 15, 1761. He was one of a family of six children, none of whom married, with the exception of himself, and his brother Philip Wilbor. August 22, 1820, his brother Joshua, who inherited the Benjamin F. Wilbour place from his father, died a bachelor, aged 66 years, and the Joshua Wilbour place so called, went to the three remaining heirs, namely his two brothers, Philip and Daniel, and his sister Mary. The place was then divided into three parts (see partition deed, land evidence Little Compton). The south third went to Daniel, the north third to Philip and the middle third to Mary Wilbour, sister of Joshua. It was Mary who, about this time, built the house now called the cottage south of the drive which divides it from the larger house where she was born. She built the main part of the house and added an old school house for the "L". Here she lived for about twenty-five years or until her death in 1845.

It is said that she and her cousin, Nathaniel Southworth, courted for fifty years as their parents objected to their marriage as they were own cousins.

Her will dated 1844 and made by Charles Wilbour who calls her "Femme Sole" leaves one-half of her one-third share of the place to her nephew, Benjamin[7] F. Wilbour and the other half of her third share to the sons of her brother Philip, namely Ezra, Henry and Charles, who afterwards inherited their father's share of the place which gave them the north half of the place also. This north half was bought by Benjamin[7] F. Wilbour, again uniting this place under one ownership.

Daniel[6] Wilbor through his mother, Mary Southworth, was descended from John Alden and Priscilla Mullins of the Mayflower; William Collier; William Pabodie, who married Betty Alden; Philip Kirtland and Alice (Carpenter) Southworth, widow of Edward of the Leyden (Holland) Church and later the wife of Governor Bradford and all of whom were first settlers.

Daniel[6] Wilbor was also quite a land owner in Little Compton.

Besides owning part of the Benjamin F. Wilbour place he also owned the present Daniel Wilbor place on the west side of the road given to him by his father, Daniel, and also the Southworth place where his mother was born and now the property of Franklin C. Southworth.

In May 30, 1790, he married Deborah Taylor, born December 20, 1770, died April 22, 1850, daughter of William and Deborah (Gray) Taylor and a descendant of Richard Warren of the Mayflower. Daniel was a Quaker. His will is recorded in Little Compton, Probate Book 8, Page 206.

Benjamin[7] Franklin Wilbour, son of Daniel[6], Daniel[5], William[4], Samuel[3], William[2], Samuel[1], was born at Little Compton and died there.

He heired the south half of the Benjamin F. Wilbour place from his father and Aunt Mary Wilbour and bought out the north half from the heirs of his Uncle Philip Wilbor, thus again uniting under one ownership the place that belonged to his grandfather, Daniel[6].

Through his mother, Deborah Taylor, he was descended from the following first settlers: Robert Taylor, of Newport; Edward Gray, of Plymouth and wife Dorothy Lettice; Richard Church of Hingborn and wife Elizabeth Warren, daughter of Richard, of the Mayflower; John Tucker of Hingham, and Joseph Kent, of Swansea and his wife Susanna George.

He was a farmer and all of his life was spent in Little Compton. At one time he lived on the Southworth place but the greater part was spent on the Benjamin F. Wilbour place. He was a Quaker as was his father, Daniel, and attended services at the Quaker meeting house on Brimstone Hill. A mild mannered man of an easy going disposition, he was affectionately known as grandfather Franklin.

On September 30, 1827, he married Abby Maria Taylor, born February 26, 1811, died February 8, 1887, daughter of Simeon and Mary Ann (Jones) Taylor. Her father's place was what is now the one owned by Leeds Burchard. It was said that when they were married they were the handsomest couple in town. Someone remarked that it was strange that such a handsome couple should have such homely children.

In temperament, Abby Franklin as she was often called, was the direct opposite of her husband. She was a very active and energetic worker both at home and in church affairs. She was a member of the Methodist Church for nearly fifty years. Was president of the Women's Anti-Slavery Society of the town and was also interested in woman suffrage, temperance and had a very active mind. When

Frederick Douglas the noted negro abolitionist came to town in 1843 it was she who entertained him under her roof and it was a matter of great scandal among the neighbors that she rode to church with a "Nigger" while grandfather Franklin walked.

After Frederick Douglas had left she went to his room and found two heaps of very precisely piled toe nails placed on the wash stand.

Most of all she was noted for her extreme neatness as a housekeeper, which was almost a mania. When reproved by a neighbor for using a straw from a whisk broom to test a cake, she replied "I'll have you to understand that broom is washed every day." A pail of water was kept on a shelf in the kitchen for her use alone. Every piece of meat must be washed in five separate waters and every thing was done about the house in the same fashion.

The following tradition is told of her father's brother, Andrew Taylor, a merchant and politician of the town. In the year 1800 he was running for a place in the general assembly and knowing of two men whom he was certain were against him, he made them the proposition, that on election day they would allow themselves to be locked in the corn crib and for every bushel of corn shelled, he would give them fifty cents. When the day came he locked them in, gave them plenty of corn and also a quart of whiskey each. Needless to say there was little corn shelled that day.

Benjamin[7] F. Wilbour died at his home in Little Compton, July 11, 1877, aged 75 years. He and his wife are buried in the new Wilbor cemetery. His will is as follows:

To all persons to whom these presents shall come, I Benjamin F. Wilbour, of Little Compton in the County of Newport and State of Rhode Island, yeoman, . . . I give to my beloved wife Abby M. Wilbour, the use and improvement of all my real estate (except a small wood lot hereafter given to my son Henry P. Wilbour), during her natural life; improvement of mansion house and yard. . . . Also to her all my household furniture. . . .

To son Henry P. Wilbour my Colebrook wood lot of two acres adjoining Daniel Wilbour's wood land, also a right to get thirty loads of seaweed annually on the Joshua Wilbor Beach, wherever I have a right to get seaweed. . . . I also give to him $1400 in cash.

To daughter Mary Ann Austin $400.

To daughter Abby M. Nobles $400.

To daughter Evelyn C. Wilbour $500.

I also give the said Evelyn my Mary Wilbour house, dooryard, and privilege to get water at the well.

I give to my grandson Philip H. Wilbour $25.

To my granddaughter Dora J. Wilbour $25.

I give and devise to my son Benjamin F. Wilbour all the rest and residue of my estate of every name and description (including the Benjamin F. Wilbour place) on condition that he shall pay all the cash legacies before named.

I hereby appoint my aforesaid residuary legatee Benjamin F. Wilbour sole executor of this my last will and testament.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this ninth day of January in the year of our Lord eight hundred and seventy-four.

Shadrach Wilbore[2]

By Benjamin F. Wilbour

Shadrach Wilbore was probably born in England about 1632 for he gives his age twice at least in different public records. He also removed with his father Samuel, Sr., to Portsmouth in 1638 but must have returned with him to Boston in 1645 for he would then be but thirteen years of age.

Soon after returning to Boston Samuel, Sr. bought land of Edward Case in Taunton. A house lot near the centre and a farm spoken of in the article about him, which lately belonged to the Caswells on Caswell Street.

On August 14, 1672, Shadrach Wilbore was on a jury to view the body of Peter Treby, son of Peter of Newport, being at Taunton with his mother Bethiah. The verdict was that the child of three years being near the riverside by some accident fell into the river, etc.

On October 27, 1685, Shadrach was granted liberty to sell strong liquor by the gallon if "careful not to sell to such as will abuse the same."

The history of Taunton says, "The town clerk chosen for the present year being the 6th of March, 1664/5 is Shadrach Wilbore and so to continue as long as he the said clerk and the town shall agree." He was not, however, the first town clerk of Taunton as has been sometimes stated. Oliver Purchis had already preceded him as clerk of the town. But as the history further relates, "the clerkship of this Wilbore in Taunton's history is remarkable, not only for it's length, continuing on from 1664/5 to nearly the close of the century, or about thirty-five years, but for the beauty of his penmanship, which appears in many documents still preserved, and more especially of his fidelity as a town officer, and what he suffered as a proof of that fidelity in a long imprisonment in Boston and Bristol during the odious administration of Sir Edmund Andros in 1686 and onwards."

The tax which produced such excitement in the colonies was levied the next January as appears in the following orders: January 4, 1686. Ordered that a single country rate of one penny in the pound be levied and collected in all the late colonies and provinces towards defraying the publick charges of this his Majesty's government. The treasurer at the time who collected the tax was Mr. John Usher. The letter of Mr. Wilbore to Mr. Usher cannot be found, but we do know that the people of Taunton replied to him through Shadrach Wilbore their clerk, that they did not "feel free to raise money on the inhabitants without their own assent in an assembly."

It seems that in 1684 the Massachusetts charter was falsely declared forfeited and Governor Edmund Andros having been appointed governor over the whole of New England, commended arbitrary and tyrannical measures. One of the first was to levy a tax of twenty cents on each poll and one penny in the pound, upon all property in the colonies. Andros was a much hated man.

For transmitting the above spirited answer to Mr. Usher, Shadrach Wilbore was fined 20 marks and imprisoned three months in Boston and in the jail in Bristol. In less than two years from that time Andros was himself on his way to England under arrest for his misdeeds.

As has been said before the letter written by Shadrach cannot be found, but it was the occasion of the following order from Sir Andros and his council:

"Shadrach Wilbore of the town of Taunton, being by the messenger brought before the board and examined about the scandalous, factious and seditious writeing sent from the said towne to the treasurer in answer to his warrant for the publicke rate signed by him as clerke, he owned the same and declared it to be the act of the town.

"Ordered, that the said Shadrach Wilbore be bound over to answer for the same att the next superior court to be holden at Bristoll meeting held Wednesday, August 31, 1687."

This order was followed on the same day by a warrant for Shadrach's arrest.

"To ye sheriffs of ye county of Suffolk:

"Whereas Shadrach Wilbore, town clerk of Taunton, both lately in ye name and with ye consent of said town, wrote and published, a certain scandalous, factious and seditious writeing, wherein being much reflecting upon and containneing the laws, authority and government of this his Majesty's territory and dominion of New England, the such writeing upon his examination before his excellency in council he hath confessed and owned these are therefore in his Majesty's name to require and command you to take into yor Custody ye body of ye sd. Shadrach Wilbore and him safely keep in his Majesty's goals until he shall have answered for ye sd. contempt and misdemeanor and be from thence delivered by sd. courts of his Majesty's laws. Where of fail not and for so doing this shall be your warrant. Dated Boston, ye 30th day of August 1687." Mass. Hist. Coll. 3rd series; Vol. 7, page 190.

After lying five weeks in jail, Wilbore petitioned for his release, expressing more humbly than the case required his penitence for having given offence to his Majesty's servants. Anyone wishing to see the document, may find it in the State archives. Vol. 127, page 236. It bears date "Bristoll, the 14th of November 1687." and is as follows:

"The humble petition of Shadrach Wilbore of Taunton Towne Clark: To his highness Sir Edmund Andross, knight, Governor in Chief of his Majesty's territory and dominion in New England. Humbly showeth that whereas your poor petitioner did in the name and with the consent of the Town of Taunton (As Towne Clarke) and by virtue of his office, judge himself obliged to doe, did write a letter to John Usher Esq., the contents of said letter or Writting, proving very offensive to authority, for which your petitioner is sorry, sorry that he should give cause for offense to any, either in writing or any other way, for it was not any way intended by your petitioner, either to offend your excellency, or the government his Majesty hath set over us, and therefore where-in your petitioner hath offended any person (he asketh their pardon) intreating your excellency to impute the offensiveness of sd. writing to the ignorants, weakness and sinfulness of your poor petitioner, (as to law matters) entreating your Excellency to grant your poor petitioner a gratious pardon, and to the honoured court's sentence against him, here at Bristol (and remit it) or what of it your excellency shall think fitt, beseeching your Excellency to consider what your poor petitioner hath already suffered, both at Boston and alsoe here at Bristol, at Boston his imprisonment there, and charges for a retreat out of prison, and here at Bristol, it being five weeks since he was first committed to Prison, intreating your Excellency to consider the in-ability of your poor petitioner, and the time of the year, it being very cold for a poor prisoner, and alsoe his low estate, and a great family of children (not needful to say the towne of Taunton hath already answered the matter then in question) and for the future your petitioner hopes he shall be most careful what he writes,——your pardon for giving your Excellency the trouble of reading these lynes, hoping for your Excellency's gratious answer, shall rest you humble petitioner.

SHADRACH WILBORE.

Bristol the 14th of November 1687.

"A copie of my petition to Sir Edmund Andross in Bristol."

The above letter is written in a very beautiful script and shows him to have been a man of education as well as a very fine penman. We find that Shadrach faithfulness to the town was afterwards rewarded by the town of Taunton for the records of the town contain the following:

"This 21 day of November, 1689, it was voted and granted to Shadrach Wilbore, the Town Clerk, one hundred acres of land joining to his land at Bareneed, or some where thereabout, in consideration of his imprisonment and suffering, he paying what money is due at that account, which is to say, the five and forty shillings which we borrowed of William Wilbore of Rhode Island."

The land mentioned above as being at Bareneed is of course the farm which was given to Shadrach by his father, Samuel, and was his father's homestead farm.

Shadrach Wilbore died at Taunton, Mass., in February, 1697/8. His will is given in the Taunton Records as follows:

I, Shadrach Wilbore, Senr of Taunton in the county of Bristol within his Majesty's province of the Massachusetts Bay, in New England, being now sick in body, but of a disposing mind and memory, Blessed be God, do make this my last will and Testament.

First and Principally I commit my spirit to God that Gave it me and my body to the dust to be decently burried, by my executors here-in-after named, and as to my worldly estate that God hath given me, I dispose of as followeth:

Imp. I give and bequeath unto my loveing wife Hannah thirty pounds sterling in money and two good cows and also free liberty to take all the estate (that was hers) that she brought to me from Braintree, what of it, is in being at my decease, that is, provided my sd. wife Hannah has a desire to return again to her children at Braintree. But if my said wife Hannah will be pleased to stay with my children and be a mother to them, then my will is, that she shall have ye use of the best room in my house so long as she shall continue here and Bare my name, she shall be maintained out of my estate as my wife.

Item. As concerning my eldest son Samuel Wilbore deceased considering that I did not in his life time, give unto him my said son Samuel Wilbore any assurance by writing of what he enjoyed, therefore now I do ratify and confirm what he did enjoy to belong to his wife and children, as it is in the inventory of his estate which was taken by Stephen Merrick and Israel Thrasher to be to them and to their heires and assigns forever.

Item. I give and bequeath unto my son Joseph Wilbore a parcel of land at the head of my home lott, from the head of my said home lott, to ye high way, in the plaine with the house standing on it, on the east side of the highway & also six acres of land in said Plaine on the west side of the highway & alsoe my lott at Rumford of twenty acres of upland & two acres of meadow or meadow highland, & also twenty acres of land lyeing northerly from Prospect Hill, on the easterly side of the way to the cedar swamp and allso a little lott of land which is already formed round about, being about three or four acres of land which land I bought of Daniel Ma—— to be to him my said son Joseph Wilbore to him & to his heires and assigns forever all ways provided that my son Joseph Wilbore shall pay to his brother John Wilbore the sum of five pounds towards the building of him a house.

Item. I give and bequeath unto my son Shadrach Wilbore the southerly side of the land I bought of James Bell as it may be staked out with the house and barne standing on it and allso six acres of land in the Plaine, lying on the northerly side of the above said six acres of land I gave to my son Joseph Wilbore & all the twenty acres of land & two acres of meadow or meadow Highland which I bought of Moses Knapp and Thomas Briggs, lyeing at Rumford and allso twenty acres of land lying northerly from Prospect Hill and the eastwardly side of the way to the cedar swamp to him my said son Shadrach Wilbore and his heires executors and assigns for ever, allways provide that my said son Shadrach Wilbore shall pay unto his brother Eleazer Wilbore ten pounds towards the building of a house and a convenient cartway across his land to the common highway for my said son Eleazer his heires, executors and assigns to make use of as their own of eight.

Item. I give and bequeath unto my son John Wilbore a parcel of land at the head of the lotts of John Ffarwell and John Cobb which I bought of the widow Mary Andrews & her son Henry Andrews and allsoe three and twenty acres of land, lyeing northerly from Prospect Hill on the northerly side of the way that goeth to the cedar swamp, joyning to the land his uncle Joseph Wilbore gave to him my said son John Wilbore & to his heires, Executors & assigns forever.

Item. I give and bequeath unto my son Elizier Wilbore the northerly side of that land I bought of James Bell as it may be staked out with a cartway across the southerly part to the common highway, and allso twenty acres of land lyeing northerly from Prospect Hill on the easterly side of the way that goeth to the cedar swamp, joyning to the land that his uncle Joseph Wilbore gave to my son Elizier Wilbore and also the one-half of my share in the dead swamp to him my said son Elizier Wilbore and to his heires, executors and assigns forever.

Item. I give and bequeath to my son Benjamin Wilbore all that my house in which I now dwell and barne & lott on which they stand, allso my meadow and swamp on the easterly side of the great river opposite to my house & the privilidge to the said meadow and allso twenty acres of land lying northerly from Prospect Hill on the easterly side of the way that goeth to ye Cedar swamp, nearest to the Pine Swamp. Allso my little orchard, so called to be to my said son Benjamin Wilbore and his heires, executors and assigns for ever, allways excepting what I have granted to my wife Hannah if she pleases to stay and make use of it.

Item. I give and bequeath unto my daughter Sarah the now wife of Nathaniel Hoar, ten pound sterling, besides what she hath had formerly.

Item. I give and bequeath unto my daughter Rebecca now wife of Abraham Hathaway, tenn pound sterling besides what she hath had formerly.

Item. I give and bequeath unto my sons, Joseph, Shadrach, Elizier and Benjamin Wilbore and to my grandson Samuel Wilbore all that my part right in the old township of Taunton equally amongst them to be to them and to their heires, executors and assigns forever.

Item. I do nominate and appoint my sons Joseph and Shadrach Willbore executors of this my last will and testament, to whom I do impower to demand & al debts yt is due to me from any person, paying all the debts yt I do owe for any person & discharging my funeral & performing the trust commited to them which I hope they will do.

Item. I do give and bequeath unto my executors Joseph and Shadrach Wilbore five pounds sterling in silver money.

Item. My will is that what land of mine shall remaine not disposed of at my decease shall be equally divided amongst my five sons, Joseph, Shadrach, John, Elizier and Benjamin Wilbore, to be to them and to their heires, executors and assigns for ever.

Item. My will is that notwithstanding all that I have bequeathed unto my children shall not cut off or disanull any thing that I engaged or promised to my loveing wife Hannah but that she shall be taken care of and provided for out of my whole estate by my executors if she my said wife Hannah do stay here with my children and take a motherly care of them and continue in my name as above said.

Item. My will is that my above named executors shall have one full years liberty after my decease before they shall pay any legacies without they be willing to whom a legacie is due by this my last will & testament, and that the above said legacies shall be first payd out of my estate and then the remainder of my movables shall be equally divided amongst my five sons, Joseph, Shadrach, John, Elizier and Benjamin Wilbore.

Item. My will is that what of my debts my executors shall remain shall belong to my five sons above named equally to be divided amongst them only my said executors shall be payd for the gathering of my said debts.

Item. My will is that my son Joseph Wilbore shall take the charge & care of all my writtings & books of account and to this as to my last will and testament, I have put my hand & seale this 12th day of September in the year of our Lord 1696.

SHADRACH WILLBORE SENR.

Signed in the presence of,
Henry Hodges.
Israel Thresher.
John Haskins.

Memorandum, that in Bristol March ye first 1697 there personally appeared before John Saffin Esq., judge of the probate of wills and within the county of Bristol, Deacon Henry Hodges and John Haskins and made oath that they were present and did see, Shadrach Willbore Senr late of Taunton deceased, signe and declare the above written to be his last will and testament and that he was of disposing mind when he so did and that they allso see Israel Thresher signe as witness at the same time.

As we had proof that William Wilbore was related to the first Samuel of Boston but did not know how, we placed him with the sons of Samuel for convenience and put an explanation in the front of the book. But now the article foregoing on the English Wilbores' shows he was the son of John of Baaintre England who was first cousin to Samuel Wilbore of Boston.

Joseph Wilbore settled in Little Compton, R. I. On December 15, 1701, William Wilbore, his father, gave him thirty acres of land. This was the beginning of his farm near the Commons, directly south of the C. R. Wilbor store and owned in 1870 by the widow of Otis Wilbor, the town clerk (see map of 1870). It is now owned by Mrs. Isaac W. Howland. The northern boundary on the old proprietor's map was lot eight of first division of house lots. Joseph Wilbore is buried in the old burying ground on this place and the inscription is as follows: "In memory of Joseph Wilbore, son of William of Portsmouth, who emigrated to Little Compton, R. I., in 1680 and died May 4, 1729, aged 73." His will made at Little Compton, R. I., January 11, 1728, was proved June 5, 1729. He bequeathed to wife Anna all household stuff, money debts, etc., and improvement of biggest room in my house for life and $10 per year. To son William, certain land and buildings. To son John, twenty-five acres of land. To son Thomas, my homestead farm and dwelling house. To son Benjamin, five shillings. To son Stephen, five shillings. To daughters Anna Wood, Mary Eldridge and Abigail Wilbore, 50 pds. each. To grandson Joseph Clossen, 15 acres of land and 40 pds. To grandson Timothy Clossen, 20 acres of land and 40 pds. and a cow. To son-in-law Thomas Burge(ss), 5 shillings. To nine children rest of estate. His widow Anna's will was made December 12, 1739, and proved April 7, 1747.

Samuel Wilbore lived on what was recently the Oliver H. Wilbor place, on the west road and in the southwestern part of the town. Part of this land he received from his father. His wife, Mary Potter, came from what is now Central Village; her father's farm is a little west of Central Village up a lane to the south of the main road from Central Village to Adamsville. On this land is a large Brownell cemetery. Samuel Wilbore settled in Little Compton much earlier than 1700. It was he who laid out the old Wilbor cemetery in 1740 on his farm and it has been used for many generations by his descendants. Following is Samuel's will:

In the name of God Amen, this fourteenth day of January, 1729-30 in the year of our Lord, I Samuel Wilbor of Little Compton in the county of Bristol and his Majesty's (George the 1st) province of Massachusetts Bay, being well of body and of perfect mind and memory, thanks be given to God for the same, calling to mind the mortality of the body and knowing it is appointed for all men once to die, doe order and ordain this my last will and testament, that is to say:

I give and bequeath to my beloved son Samuel his now dwelling house and all my lands that lie to the eastward of the Cole brook line and 100 pounds in good bills of credit. (This place was off of the swamp road to the north and up a long lane and almost opposite the Southworth place. In 1870 Robert Gray Wilbor lived there. Samuel, son of Samuel[3], was living there in 1772.)

To son William Wilbor, whom I constitute and make and ordain my sole executor, my now dwelling house and the rest of my land where it now standeth, that is to say the west half of all my homestead farm (the Oliver H. Wilbor place) and my andirons and old gray mare.

To son Isaac Wilbore, one-half of my homestead, the east end thereof and also my gun and iron-bound chest, my new bridle and saddle and my new bible and also stock of cattle, hogs and sheep and my wearing clothes.

To daughters Martha Pearce, Johanna Taylor, Mary Brownell, Thankful Irish and Elizabeth Peckham, 40 pounds each.

Besides other bequests to his sons, he gives directions for a burial place:

And my will is that whereas I have a burying place on the south side of the land that I have given my son William, my will is that there be a piece of land four rods square allowed for a burying place and also a driftway to it on the south side of William's land and that it be and remain for that use and no other forever, never to be sold nor put away, so that my family may have liberty to bury in it. And if there be any of my household stuff left that is not disposed of in this my will, my will is that it shall be equally divided amongst all my children and I do hereby disavow and disanull all and every other forme of will—by me anyways made and ratifying this and no other to be my last will and testament .

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this day and year above written. SAMUEL WILLBOR (Seal).

Witnesses:
Samuel Coe.

Benjamin Wilbore in 1704 received all the lands in Portsmouth, R. I., of his father William Wilbore. He held this land until 1714 as is shown by the map of that date. This land is bounded east by the road to Bristol Ferry at the north and near the present Portsmouth railroad station. He was selling lands in Portsmouth on December 24, 1720, when he and his wife, Elizabeth, now of Dartmouth, sold two small islands called Spectacle Islands to Daniel Rowland. It was about this time that he moved to Dartmouth, where he died. Part of his children are recorded in Portsmouth, part in Little Compton and the last births in Dartmouth. His will is dated Dartmouth, April 1, 1724, and proved December 1, 1729. He bequeathed: To wife Elizabeth, one-half of the profits of my homestead farm and use of one-half of my dwelling house. To son Daniel, 60 pds. To son William, land in Dartmouth, joining land of James Akin, William Durfey and Thos. Briggs, Jr. To son Samuel, certain land in Newport, R. Samuel Wilbur served as Captain in the Revolutionary war. In his pension record at Washington, D. C., are numerous papers referring to his service. Included is his commission as Captain of the 5th Co. of the trained band of Scituate, dated 11th day of May, 1778. In 1833, at the age of 92, he applied for a pension, but owing to his advanced age was unable to recall all his service. His son Benjamin, in a letter to the government, stated: "He was captain of militia during the whole period of the Revolutionary War and was actively employed as he has often heard him say, many, many years ago, and all his neighbors, who are old enough to remember, now say: Another commission dated June 23, 1776, is signed by Nicholas Cook, Esq." According to the testimony of Jonathan Smith, "Samuel Wilbur was considerably engaged in enlisting minute men in the spring of 1776 and the fall of that year. He served with Wilbur at Warwick for one month in 1777 at the Tippet House. He was in 1777 in what was called Spencer's expedition when sd. Wilbur was on duty at Tiverton. In the summer of 1780, he was on duty at Bristol. He served as Captain and he was a zealous man in war." His will was made in 1835, in it he mentions all of his children.

Aaron Wilbor served as Captain in the Revolution and had five sons, all soldiers in the Revolution. Aaron served at or near Boston in 1775 for eight months, in 1776, was in the Battle of Rhode Island and many times guarded the shores of the town. He served in the Town Council of Little Compton from 1775 to 1781. He lived on the Long Highway in the eastern part of the town, on the farm owned in 1870, by John Soule and now owned by Adolphus Allen. His will was made Apr. 7, 1802, and proved Nov. 3, 1802. In it he mentions wife Ruth to whom he gives the use of the east part of his dwelling house. To son Benjamin, two dollars; to son Aaron, three silver dollars, wearing apparel except silver buttons and buckles; to son Francis, all his lands in Little Compton; to son Thomas, two silver dollars and case of drawers of black walnut; to son John, two silver dollars; to daughter, Sarah Soul, one silver dollar; to daughter Ruth Palmer, one cow. His first wife, Mary Church Wilbor, is buried on the George Bixby place, the farm formerly owned by Aaron.

E–607—DANIEL WILBOR[5] (William[4], Samuel[3], William[2], Samuel[1]), b. June 1, 1729, Little Compton, R. I.; d. Apr., 1803, Little Compton, R. I.; m., Mar. 22, 1753, Mary Southworth, dau. Joseph–Mary (Blake) (she b. Dec. 30, 1728; d. Apr. 18, 1799). Residence: Little Compton, R. I.

Daniel Wilbor was a member of the general assembly during the revolution and for several years was a member of the town council. His wife, Mary Southworth, was a descendent of John Alden, the Pilgrim. Daniel's will was made at Little Compton, R. I., January 21, 1800, and proved in 1803. To son, Joshua, my homestead farm where I now dwell with all the buildings, also to have my desk; to son, Daniel Wilbor, the land and buildings I bought of Eleazer Chase, which lyeth to the west of the road; to son Philip, the land I bought of Ezra Chase (this place is now owned by Lester E. Wilbor); to daughter, Lydia Wilbor, $500; to daughter, Mary Wilbor, $500; the sd. two daughters to have all household goods and the use of my south chamber and bedroom adjoining.

Daniel Wilbur, as is shown by the above will, owned several farms: The place which he leaves to his son Philip and is now in the possession of his descendant, Lester E. Wilbour; the farm which he gives to his son Daniel, which now belongs to the Daniel Wilbour heirs, and the farm which he gives to his son Joshua and which is now the Benjamin F. Wilbour place. He probably also owned part of the farm now owned by D. Franklin C. Southworth, which was the home of his wife, Mary Southworth.

Daniel Wilbor, or Wilbur as he spelled his name, served as deputy to the General Assembly (1775-6-7 and 1783-4), which met in the old court house at Newport. Although he was not a soldier, this service entitles his descendants to the privilege of joining either the Sons or Daughters of the Revolution. His law book, desk and the place where he lived are still in the hands of some of his descendants.

John Wilbor was a Quaker writer and preacher, his parents being of the same faith. From childhood he was religiously inclined. He was appointed an elder at the age of 28 and was officially acknowledged as such in 1812. In 1824, he traveled through parts of New England and in 1827 visited the state of New York. From 1831 to 1833, he visited and addressed Friends in England and in 1852 and 1853 he traveled and preached in Pennsylvania. In 1853, a second voyage to England. In 1845, after the Gurneyites had been established, he published a book of 355 pages, entitled "Narrative and Exposition." His writings were extensive and his journal and correspondence, a book of 596 pages, was published by his friends and appeared in 1859. In 1853, he was disowned by the society and another division was established and called "Wilborites" in his honor. He died at Hopkinton, R. I., and is buried in the Friends burial ground at that place.

Daniel Wilbor's will is recorded at Little Compton, R. I., and is dated the 22nd day of the 3rd month, 1839, and proved March 8, 1841. To wife, Deborah, the use and improvement of the keeping room, the closet and bed room adjoining it in the east end of my dwelling house where my son Daniel now lives, likewise the use and improvement of the chamber in the southeast corner of said house with the privilege of passing to and from said chamber when she pleases. Also the use and improvement of the kitchen and a privilege in the porch, woodshed and oven for all purposes she may deem necessary; the use of my chaise during her widowhood and order my son Daniel Wilbor to find her a horse when she needs one, and my large bible; to son, Peleg, certain land; to son, Benjamin F., certain land and my desk; to son Daniel, certain land; to sons, Roland G. and Edwin, twelve dollars equally between them; to daughter, Sophia Brown, five dollars; to daughter, Philena Briggs, $300; to grandson, Hervey J. Wilbour, $300; to daughter-in-law, Prudence Wilbour, my silver bowed spectacles and two books; to grand children, Deborah and Daniel Brown, six dollars equally; to son Benjamin F. Wilbour, eight bushels of apples out of orchard given to my son Daniel until 1850, when the gift shall cease; to sons Peleg, Benjamin F. and Daniel, all the rest and residue, ordering them to return to Mary Wilbor the sheep that belong to her.

Daniel Wilbor, or Wilbour as he spelled his name, was of a family of six children, but only two married—himself and his brother Philip. Their brother Joshua dying in 1820; the Benjamin F. Wilbour place, left to him by his father, went to his only living heirs, namely his brothers Daniel and Philip and his sister Mary Wilbour. In 1830 the place was divided into three parts, the south third was set off to Daniel, the middle third to Mary and the north third to Philip Wilbour. It was Mary Wilbour who, about this time, built the house on the place, called the "Cottage," south of the drive which divides it from the mansion house, so called, which was divided between her brothers, Daniel and Philip. The main part of the cottage was built by Mary, and an old schoolhouse was added on the north, which makes the present "L." Here she lived for about twenty-five years, until her death in 1845. In her will, made by Charles Wilbor in 1844, he calling her "Femme sole," she leaves to her nephew, Benjamin F. Wilbour, the south part of her third of the place and the north of her third to the children of her brother Philip. This north half was afterward bought by her nephew, Benjamin R. Wilbour, and the farm again came under one ownership.

Daniel Wilbour besides owning part of the Benjamin Wilbour place, which he gave to his son Benjamin F., also owned the present Daniel Wilbour place, which he left to his son Daniel, and the Southworth place, now owned by Franklin C. Southworth and which he left to his son Peleg Wilbour. Daniel's wife, Deborah Taylor, was descended from Richard Church, of the Mayflower.

Philip Wilbor's will was made at Little Compton, R. I., March 21, 1841, and it was proved March 9, 1846. To beloved wife, Mercy Wilbor, the improvement and use of the south room in the house I now live in, etc. I order that nine rods of land in the corner of the little orchard meadow where my daughters and one grandchild lie be set as a burial place for myself and family and posterity; to son Charles Wilbor, $500. All the rest and residue I bequeath to my sons Henry Wilbor and Ezra Wilbor. Lastly, in case my sister Mary Wilbor survives me, my residuary legatees must find her my proportion of her yearly stipend secured to her in her father's will. Witnesses: Thomas W. Chase, Samuel T. Burgess, Loring Gray. Philip Wilbor lived on the farm which he inherited from his father Daniel Wilbor and is the place now owned by his descendant, Lester Wilbor, the present town clerk. Philip Wilbor and his wife, Mercy, are buried in the New Wilbor or Seaconnet cemetery.

Isaac Wilbor was one of Little Compton's most influential and honored citizens. He was born on the farm owned by his father Charles Wilbor. This place is now owned by the heirs of John Alden Seabury and is at the end of the road leading south from the Commons. In early life Isaac moved to the place now owned by his descendant, Philip H. Wilbour, this place having been in the same family for four generations. Isaac Wilbor served as a member of Congress from 1807 to 1809, and the following year was elected Lt. Governor of Rhode Island. He was acting governor 1806-1807. In 1801 he became a member of the R. I. Assembly and again in 1805, when he was made Speaker of the House. In that year the people of the north part of Gloucester petitioned to be set off into a separate town, but the political feeling existing resulted in a tie vote, whereupon Speaker Wilbor cast his vote in favor of the bill. Action in the Senate was adverse and when in 1806 the bill came up again with a tie, again Isaac Wilbor gave the decisive vote. The petitioners were anxious to give his name to the new town, but he being unwilling, it was called Burrilville in memory of James Burrill. Isaac Wilbor was appointed in 1818 as associate Justice of the Supreme Court and soon through the retirement of Hon. James Fenner, Judge Wilbor became Chief Justice, an office he held until 1826, when he retired because of ill health. He was much interested in the Quaker faith which was the religion of his father, Charles Wilbor. Isaac and his family are buried in the new Wilbor or Seaconnet cemetery, Little Compton, R. I. An interesting anecdote is told of Mr. Wilbor. It occurred between the close of the Revolution and the War of 1812. The scene, Tiverton (R. I.) Four Corners where quite a hubbub is going on. A terrified woman is bound to an upright stake. For some misdemeanor the court has sentenced the woman to be flogged. Governor Wilbor is to attend the execution of the court's sentence. The women of the town are surging about him in violent protest. They inquire as to the law and he reads from the statute: "the condemned shall be tied to an upright post and flogged, according to the sentence of the court", another rebellious outcry followed by an expectant hush, as His Excellency suggests: "But, ladies, if it happened that there was no upright post, how could the law be carried out," whereupon a hundred willing hands unite in overthrowing, not for the occasion, but for all time, the offensive instrument of public castigation for since then no woman has been publicly flogged in Rhode Island.
